VICIOUS NEGROES KEEP POLICE MAGISTRATE BUSY.

Crap Shooters, White and Black, Are Warned That Jail Sentence Will Be Imposed For Second Offense—Foot Long Pistol.

Police Magistrate W. A. Trader and the local officers have had a busy time this week. On Sunday a gang of crap shooters was rounded up in Wimbrow's livery stables, where four colored sports were enthusiastically engaged in the game. They were arrested and jailed to wait for a hearing, which was given them on Monday. This was the first offense for this crowd and a heavy fine and costs was imposed. The negroes were given a severe reprimand by the justice, however, and were warned by him that if any of them were ever brought before him again for a similar offense he would commit them to the Maryland House of Correction for two months, and Mr. Trader meant what he said.

Three white crap shooters were also brought before Mr. Trader during the week. They had been indulging in the game in the vicinity of the New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk Railroad depot. This, also, was a case of first offense, and the same warning was given to them in addition to the fine they were obliged to pay.

Fred Hudson, a negro who has been in the toils several times before was given a hearing on the charge of assaulting Pearl Messick, a colored woman who lived with him. He was found guilty of assaulting her with a stove lid, and was sentenced to a term of 12 months in the House of Correction.

Yesterday afternoon Marion Waller, another vicious colored residence was found guilty of the charge of carrying concealed weapons and was sentenced by Squire Trader to the same institution. When Waller was taken into custody a pistol a foot long, of the 38 calibre variety was found in his "gun" pocket.

Last Winter Miss Hitch sustained painful injuries by falling from which she never recovered. She was a sister of Mr. Robert Hitch, of this city.

REVELL'S CONFESSION IMPLICATES TURNER.

Prisoner Confesses To Selling Whiskey And Makes Revelations In Connection With Burning Of J. W. Turner's Home.

Because of the failure of John W. Turner, of this city, to live up to an alleged agreement between himself and Bob Revell, better known as "Chinch" Revell, the latter, on Saturday night summoned his father, Mr. Robert Revell, Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith and State's Attorney Joseph L. Bailey to his cell in the county jail and made a confession of his whiskey selling in this community and implicated Turner, who he claims was his partner in the business. The most startling feature of his confession, however, was his statement which connected Turner with the burning of the latter's house on Smith street several months ago. Revell stated that Turner approached him some time before the house was burned and offered him $25.00 to fire the building. Revell stated that he told Turner at the time that he would not have anything to do with such business and that he had received $5.00 on two occasions since then to keep quiet. Another revelation was in connection with the suitcase containing the silver-ware which was found some time ago in the bushes near the Wicomico river. In speaking of this Revell told the officers that Turner wanted him to tell the officers, after the fire that the silver-ware would be found in Mr. Warren Turner's barn, thus implicating his father in the burning of the building.

After this confession warrants were at once sworn out for Turner on two charges—arson and selling whiskey. Revell stated that Turner financed the business and that the liquor was shipped to Fruitland in Revell's name. Revell would then bring it to Salisbury and divide it with Turner. He told the officers that he sold his and that he did not know what Turner did with his share. After the whiskey had been disposed of, according to Revell, he would turn the money over to Turner and they would divide the profits. There was an agreement, he said, between Turner and himself that if Revell should be apprehended, Turner would pay his fine, which would amount to about $50.00. After Revell was arrested he sent for Turner and the latter, it is said, failed to live up to his part of the agreement. It was for this reason, Revell says, that he made his confession. In concluding his statement to the officers Revell said, "He went back on me and I made up my mind to talk. I have told the truth."

Turner was arrested Tuesday morning and lodged in the county jail. He waived a preliminary hearing and was held under bail in the sum of $1200. He was able to secure bondsmen and was given his liberty early Thursday morning.

Revell, it is said, has told several conflicting stories and it is believed that the value of his statement is lessened by his past record. This is not the first time he has ever been in the toils. About three years ago he was implicated in the breaking up of the much talked of "standing army" on Isabella street. Later he secured immunity from the law by turning State's evidence in the case of the State of Delaware versus Zarowski Brothers. Last winter he was locked up because of an alleged endeavor to board a train with a suitcase containing a number of partridges. In each of these cases, the authorities were unable to gain a conviction. He has been tried by the Court of Worcester county, and is known to have stolen two sets of harness from the Farmers & Planters Company.

Since his incarceration this last time he has made several statements which he afterward denied and then later refuted the denial and claimed that he had spoken the truth.

MUD DIGGERS READY TO DREDGE CHANNEL.

Camden Bridge Removed Yesterday And Actual Work Of Improving Land Of Salisbury Realty Co. Will Soon Be Started.

The arrival on Thursday morning of two large mud digging machines in the Salisbury harbor, in tow of the tug, "Curtin", lends significance to the plans for the dredging of the Wicomico river East of the Camden bridge as has been outlined by the Salisbury Realty Company. It is now expected that within a few days the actual work of making the river navigable through the Humphreys estate will be started. It is proposed to remove the Camden bridge long enough to allow the mud diggers to pass through and then replace it until the dredging has been completed. When this has been done a draw bridge will take the place of the present stationary structure.

At an early hour Friday morning Contractor Otis S. Lloyd, with a large force of men, placed two scows under the Camden bridge and with the rise of the tide, the structure was floated off of the abutments and moved a considerable distance away. After this was done the two dredging machines were placed in position at the end of the L. E. Williams & Co. wharf where the digging of the channel will be commenced. A large crowd of interested spectators was attracted by the work of removing the bridge and all day long a throng of people was congregated at the bridge. Traffic over the bridge was blocked during the day.

Answered Last Roll Call.

Mr. Jason Sexton, father of Mr. Grant Sexton, of this city, and one of the best known and most respected citizens of North Wales, Pa., dropped dead Monday upon a public platform from which he was making a Memorial Day address. Mr. Sexton was 76 years of age. He was a prominent Republican and had served in the Legislature of 1894-5 in which he was identified with a number of reform movements which came up.

Mr. Sexton was born in Sharon, New York, and enlisted in the Forty-fourth New York Volunteers in 1862. He was elected first lieutenant of the One Hundred and Seventy-fifth New York Regiment, served with Sheridan in the Shenandoah Valley and joined Sherman's army at Savannah during the march to the sea. He remained with that army until the close of the war.

Will Consider Rebuilding.

At the next meeting of the School Board the matter of rebuilding the Dorman School, which was recently destroyed by fire, will be taken up. It has been suggested that instead of rebuilding this school the board transport the scholars to Salisbury, where they will have all the advantages of graded and high school work. Some favor this plan, while others oppose it. So to be in a position to know accurately public sentiment on this question, the Board desires to give a hearing to all the parents interested in Dorman School.

Palm Garden Changes Hands.

At a meeting of the directors and stockholders of the Palm Garden Company held Tuesday afternoon, it was decided that the company would discontinue the actual management of the business and to this end a deal was consummated by which the place of business and the fixtures were leased to Messrs. R. Getty Browning and Harry A. Lawson, of Western Maryland. The new management went into effect on the first of June but the restaurant has been closed until the final arrangements have been completed. It is expected that Browning & Lawson will change the name of the concern and conduct a first class lunch room.

Children's Day Services.

The annual Children's Day exercises will be held at Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church on Sunday, June 12th. There will be special exercises by the children and an elaborate musical program has been arranged. The edifice will be beautifully decorated with plants and cut flowers. The offerings for Children's Day, each year, are to cover all educational enterprises of the church, especially to help the needy students who require aid to equip themselves for their chosen work. Last year the collections on this day amounted to about $175.00 and every effort will be made this year to increase the amount.

SALISBURY TO HAVE P. O. SUB-STATION.

Authorization Has Been Received By Postmaster Humphreys—Station Will Be Located In White & Leonard's No. 2 Store.

After working on the project for some time Postmaster Marion A. Humphreys has secured the consent of the Government to establish a Postoffice Sub-Station in Salisbury, to be known as Sub-Station A. This station will be established at White & Leonard's Drug Store No. 2, near the New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk Railroad depot. Mr. Gustavus W. White will be the agent in charge.

Mr. Humphreys asked for the establishment of this station so that the people living in that section of Salisbury can have the accommodation of a postoffice for registering letters, buying stamps and postal cards and depositing their mail. Of course there will be no delivery of mail at this station because the city has the carrier system, but it will be a great convenience to a large population in that section of this city to be able to get their registered mail and purchase their stamps and mail their letters at that point.

Mr. Humphreys is also working on the matter of getting an additional carrier for Salisbury as the territory is spreading out all the time and the present force cannot serve the public as quickly and efficiently as the Postmaster would like. He has therefore, put in his requisition for a redistricting of the city and asked for an additional carrier which he expects to get within a very short time.

The work of the Salisbury postoffice is growing by leaps and bounds and it is expected that further improvements will have to be added. Just as soon as the day current is turned on by the Electric Light Co. Mr. Humphreys will install an electric canceling machine to cancel the stamps on letters. As the town grows other sub-stations will no doubt be asked for and will probably be allowed.

Bids Were Refused.

Tuesday last the County Commissioners opened the bids received for the School Bonds to be sold by the County. The bonds bear interest at the rate of four per centum per annum. There were only two bids, one from Hambleton & Co., and one from Townsend, Scott & Co., both of Baltimore. Both bids were below par and the Commissioners rejected the bids as the bonds cannot be sold at less than par under the law.

New bids will be asked for on the bonds which bear interest at the rate of four and one-half per cent. per annum. It seems that four per cent. bonds are not selling anywhere in the country. The big cities have had to raise their interest rate and the Railroads as well. It is thought that the bonds at four and one-half per cent. will bring a premium.

With The Baptists.

The congregation of the Division St. Baptist Church will worship tomorrow for the last time in the present building.

Beginning Sunday June 12th all the Sunday services of the Church will be held in the Red Lens Hall, above Nock's store, corner of Dock and Main Sts. Mitchell, of this city, has the contract and proposes to have the work finished by the last of September.

Rev. Mr. Hewitt, pastor of the church, will preach on the following themes tomorrow: "A Year Together", at 11 a. m.; "Old Shoes", 8 p. m.

Catholic Church.

During the Summer season the Masses on each Sunday will be at 8 and 10.30 a. m. Sermon and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament as usual at 7.30.

During the month of June the Devotions to the Sacred Heart will take place every Tuesday at 7.30 p. m.

A handsome altar, of gothic design, the gift of Mrs. Tracy, has just been received and will be placed in the Sanctuary next week.

May File Applications.

The United States Civil Service Commission invites attention to the fact that applications for the examination for teacher in the Indian Service may now be filed. When a date for the examination is determined all persons having applications on file will be notified. Salisbury is one of the three offices in Maryland at which the examinations are held.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Study For To-morrow, "Jesus Walks On The Sea." Also Discussed By A Local Writer.

Matt. 14: 22-36.
Golden Text:—"Then they that were in the ship came and worshipped him, saying, Of a truth thou art the Son of God."

We have witnessed the great miracles of the feeding of the multitudes, and in our today's lesson will again witness the great power of Jesus over nature. These miracles establish the claim of Jesus to Messiahship.

Immediately following the feeding of the people Jesus constrained the disciples to take boat and go toward the west or Galilean coast, while He sent the people away. We find by reading our references that Jesus had cause to upbraid the people for they followed Him because they were fed and healed. Wholly bent upon possessing material benefits and not drawn to the higher and nobler things Jesus desired to teach them. John records that the tendency among the people to make Jesus a temporal king was most distressing to Him. It was this condition of the public mind, and the very bitter hatred of the scribes and Pharisees that led Jesus to depart into the mountain for prayer.

How often Jesus prayed and communed with the Father; now was need of thought and council. His work was not done. He was just at the very important part of it. He had revealed Himself through the display of power and teaching, which brought both popularity and opposition, and amidst all He was continually being misunderstood and misrepresented. There were temptations to withstand, difficulties to overcome, evil was ever at work. The request to be king in an earthly sense was a temptation similar to that of Satan upon the mount and the pinnacle of the temple. What a glorious kingdom the people foresaw if He could but be induced to be their all provident king.

The power of Christ was not for that purpose; it was of God, the Father, whose desire was, through love and truth to reveal Himself unto man and renew His nature. Worship and power must be rendered and ascribed to the Father, and could not be used as the people desired. God has taught this through all His dealing with man, but we are slow to accept the lesson. Jesus tries again and again to reveal this truth in His life and works; and herein our lesson after rest and prayer He goes to the disciples, who in crossing the sea have encountered a great storm.

Why was this storm permitted to endanger the lives of the disciples? The laws of nature are not perverted by God to save His children from trial; but He supplies the power to overcome trial. He does not grant us power and right to destroy opposition, but to overcome the effects of opposition, and to grow better and better until trial and opposition is of no effect.

When the disciples beheld Jesus they were afraid, taking His appearance in the light of an apparition, but Christ bade them, "be not afraid; it is I." How often it is that we do not recognize help as it approaches us in our trouble, and are distrustful until Jesus says plainly to us, "It is I." We do not always recognize it as coming in the right way. Our ideas are preconceived, and so warped by conditions that we do not see Jesus in our assistance.

Peter desired to come to Jesus on the water, and he was told to come. His attempt was successful, until, looking upon the furies of the waters instead of keeping his eye and thought upon Jesus, he began to sink. Doubt, doubt, the crumbling of faith. How we need to know Jesus, understand His every intent and purpose and keep our eye single to be able to stand. And after all, do we find ourselves falling, and sinking—look for Jesus' hand stretched forth to help.

Jesus stretched forth His hand to Peter and helped him, and they entered the ship, and the wind ceased, and the sea grew calm. Great power was again displayed, and for the disciples, and do we not understand that some of these disciples were displeased and disappointed that Jesus did not exert this power to become earthly great? Then it has at last dawned upon them that they were wrong, and they fall down at Jesus' feet and worship Him, as the Son of God. How often Jesus had endeavored to impress this lesson, and the coming of danger and distress opened the way again expressing loving care. "Man's extremity is God's opportunity."

"Oh, thou of little faith," Jesus did not sympathize with Peter as to the severity of the storm and the strength of the waves, nor excuse him on account of it. He gave the needed assistance, could Peter but have trusted and fully relied upon it.

On the other side of the sea were many who hearing of Jesus, begged to put touch the hem of His garments. They brought the sick of the surrounding country to be healed. They had heard of Jesus, and had faith in Him that He could heal them, but did they accept Him as the Saviour of the soul? It is still so. Men flock to the country where Jesus is to find there, under

His teachings and power many "hearts and knees," but when they are brought face to face with the truth underlying Christ's works they fail to understand. The church must make this plain. "Line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little, and there a little." C. E.

HAPPY WOMAN.

Plenty Of Them In Salisbury, And Good Reason For It.

Wouldn't any woman be happy? After years of backache suffering, Days of misery, nights of unrest, The distress of urinary troubles, She finds relief and cure? No reason who any Salisbury reader Should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. D. A. Chatham, 517 S. Division St., Salisbury, Md., says: "About fifteen years ago I first felt kidney trouble coming on, but I neglected to attend to it until my condition grew much worse. My back ached continually and after I sat in a chair for any length of time, I had to catch hold of something for support when I got up. I rubbed myself with liniments, but I found only slight relief and I was in despair. Two years ago I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at White and Leonard's Drug Store, and they soon brought relief. I have since taken this remedy off and on and I am very grateful for the benefit it has always brought."

Beautiful Berry On The Go.

Looks like the New Produce Exchange and Other Agencies and improved methods of shipment had ended glut and sacrifice prices.

Delaware is to-day in the midst of probably her greatest Strawberry season. The Pennsylvania Railroad reports to-day that the Delaware Division, up to Saturday, May 22, transported from the farms of the Delaware peninsula shipments of strawberries, this season, amounting to 3,292,735 quarts.

This shows conclusively that the season is much earlier than last year or that there will be a much larger and finer crop of strawberries. The shipments for the corresponding date of last year amounted to 633,370 quarts.

The Delaware Produce Exchange is after the fine fruit with its agents and the farmers' organization is reaching some splendid markets and bringing prompt and safe returns. The Exchange broke all records Monday when it loaded the first refrigerator car to be sent out of Dover, for Boston and the North. The New England States, Canada and the Middle West are the principal destinations being reached by the new produce exchange, thus giving the fruit a wide market and saving the growers from loss from glut in any of the Eastern cities.

From ten cents to fifty cents per crate, it claimed, is being realized by the exchange in excess over the prices offered by the local, or city buyers.

The exchange is getting practically all the shipments going from the Delaware towns in which it is operating—Dover, Felton, Laurel, Harrington, Greenwood, Delmar, Frankford, Georgetown, Ocean View, and Middletown, while the exchange prices are drawing lots, it is claimed, from Bridgeville to Greenwood and from Selbyville to Frankford.

Membership in the exchange is increasing at the rate of from five to fifteen a day and prominent farmers of the peninsula are now taking the stock at par, $5 a share. The exchange business has been averaging from twelve to thirty carloads of fruit a day, while this week shows a daily increase.

This week and next week are the banner week for strawberries in Delaware, and every minute of favorable weather means money to the growers, pickers shippers and package manufacturers.

Mississippi Steamboating.

The steamboat age on the Mississippi began about 1821 and flourished for fifty years. As early as 1834 the number of steamboats on the Mississippi and its tributaries is estimated at 230, and in 1842 there were 450 vessels, with a value of $25,000,000. But the golden era was from 1848 till the war. Never did the valley and steamboating prosper more than then. Thousands of bales of cotton were annually shipped to southern markets, and the wharfs of St. Louis and Memphis and Vicksburg and other large ports were stacked with piles of merchandise and lined with scores of steamers.—Travel Magazine.

Corrected.

It is the custom of a well known minister to point his sermons with either "dearly beloved brethren" or "now, my brothers." One day a lady member of his congregation took exception to this.

"Why do you always preach to the gentlemen and never to the ladies?" she asked.

"My dear lady," said the beaming vicar, "one embraces the other."

"But not in the church!" was the instant reply.

A Storekeeper Says:

"A lady came into my store lately and said: 'I have been using a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove all winter in my apartment. I want one now for my summer home. I think these oil stoves are wonderful. If only women knew what a comfort they are, they would all have one.' I spoke about my stove to a lot of my friends, and they were astonished. They thought that there was small and smoke from an oil stove, and that it heated a room just like any other stove. I told them of my experience, and one after another they got one, and now, not one of them would give hers up for five times its cost."

The lady who said this had thought an oil stove was all right for quickly heating milk for a baby, or boiling a kettle of water, or to make coffee quickly in the morning, but she never dreamed of using it for difficult or heavy cooking. Now she knows.

Do you really appreciate what a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove means to you? The more coal to carry, no more coming to the dinner table so tired out that you can't eat. Just light a Perfection stove and immediately the heat from an intense blue flame shoots up to the bottom of pot, kettle or oven. That the room isn't heated. There is no smoke, no smell, no outside heat, no drafty in the kitchen where you sit. These stoves are used.

New Perfection Oil Cook-stove

It has a Cabinet Top with a shelf for keeping plates and food hot. The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

Prayer at Opening of a Council.
Emanuel Wilhelm, newly elected Democratic mayor of Traverse City, Mich., introduced a decided innovation in beginning his administration the other night by calling Rev. B. A. Hill to the platform and having him open Wilhelm's first council meeting with prayer. A record breaking crowd was present, and all the spectators ceased smoking and in absolute silence listened to the Unitarian minister plead that the city officials be guided by God in their every undertaking. The mayor in his inaugural address declared that the city would be guided by God.

SATURDAY, JUNE 4, 1910.

It Is Now Clearly Up To The Local Merchants.

Now that the officials of the New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk Railroad Company, through the endeavors of Superintendent Elisha Lee, have put into effect a schedule which has been repeatedly requested by the people of Salisbury, it is clearly up to the merchants of this city, through their organization, the Business Men's Association, to show the railroad officials that they were sincere in their requests and to make the new schedule a paying investment to the company. In placing the present schedule into effect and by the running of additional trains to benefit the merchants of Salisbury the company has necessarily added considerably to its operating expenses and unless the additional trains are made to pay for themselves it is reasonable to believe that the service will be discontinued after a fair trial. This would be so in any business.

The new schedule is arranged so as to give the people living both North and South of Salisbury ample opportunity to do their shopping in this city and return to their homes the same day. Train No. 44, which is the first train North in the morning starts at Pocomoke, thus giving people between that point and Salisbury the advantage of spending the entire day and evening, if desired, in Salisbury, as they can return as late as 10.27 p. m., which is the latest local train South. Residents of the two counties in Virginia can arrive in Salisbury at 1.38 p. m. and return at 7.04 in the evening. This train allows people living as far South as Tazewell, Virginia, to spend the afternoon in Salisbury, and is one of the trains added to the schedule. Another accommodation train arrives at Salisbury from the South at 2.55 p. m. South bound trains arrive at Salisbury at 12.01 p. m. and 1.48 p. m. Passengers on either of these trains may return either at 1.38, 2.55 or at 9.42. The first two of these North bound trains are through trains and the latter runs to Delmar only.

This is, indeed, splendid train service to and from this city, and should be of great benefit to the merchants of Salisbury. As intimated above, however, the success of the venture, as far as the railroad company is concerned, depends largely upon the merchants themselves.

People from the smaller towns North and South of Salisbury are not at a disadvantage to come here to do their shopping simply because of a convenient railroad time-table. Something else must be done to attract the trade of these towns and villages. While it is true that a much better market for all kinds of merchandise can be found here than in any other place on the Eastern Shore some inducement must be held out to the people of the neighboring towns as has been done so successfully in Baltimore. The one big idea now should be to attract the people to Salisbury. The merchants should advertise the train service as well as the goods they have to offer and it goes without saying that shoppers from nearby towns will be treated with such a degree of fairness by local merchants that they will continue to do their shopping here and cause others to do so, for a satisfied customer, surely, is a perpetual advertisement.

The new schedule shows that the railroad officials are inclined to do all that is possible for Salisbury and if the merchants will now do their part the result will be the building up of a large and substantial trade from towns North and South of Salisbury.

Editorial Jottings.

June came in with a shrug of the shoulders.

We've got the train service, now let us get the business.

The strawberry growers evidently had the weather this season made to order.

It is not the high cost of living that ails the United States—it is the cost of high living.

Let us all stop throwing mud now—there are some professional mud slingers on the job.

The road to business perdition is paved with the remains of the merchants who stopped advertising.

Two mud digging machines having arrived on the scene it now looks as if the Salisbury Realty Company really means business.

A dispatch from Washington says that the United States is not to be held responsible for what Colonel Roosevelt says—and yet neither Secretary Knox or President Taft has the temerity to hold the Colonel himself responsible.

"T. R." now says he is Irish by descent. So we figure it out as follows: Irish by descent, American by residence, English by speech—and let us hope that when he reaches Scotland he doesn't become half Scotch and half seltzer by indulgence.

WORLD EVANGELIZING PLAN.

Protestant Laymen to Conduct Campaign Against Heathenism.

For the first time in the history of the world Protestant churches representing every denomination will meet on common ground to wage the greatest propaganda for Christianity the world has ever known.

The inspiration and backbone of this colossal undertaking is the Laymen's Missionary movement, with offices in New York city. The strength, like the general interest given to this international movement, is voiced in the long list of names of men high in the world of finance, as well as those known in the professional and various lines of successful business life. Men whose names are identified with some of the greatest fortunes of the United States are actively interested in this movement to Christianize the world.

The keynote of the movement is based on the belief that if the successful business men of the United States were to apply their time, their business ability and their professional experience to a movement to evangelize the world the purpose of this mission could be accomplished. So for the first time in history the twentieth century will witness the spectacle of this great combination of power with the added strength of the allied churches arraying itself against the heathen world.

The figures that deal with this proposed movement are something that even the lay mind will stop a bit to ponder. To begin with, the Laymen's Missionary movement proposes to evangelize the world within this generation. That this will be no small undertaking one need only observe these figures, furnished by the Laymen's Missionary movement:

Of the world's entire population of 1,500,000,000 only 500,000,000, or one-third, are Christians. Now, to fulfill the vow taken by the movement will require money, and much of it. The statisticians of the movement have figured that it will require about $55,000,000 annually to do the work. This means $1,625,000,000 to be spent in the next thirty-five years to evangelize the world.

Can this be done? The Laymen's Missionary movement says that it can, and on May 3 they will open their first national congress in Chicago to discuss plans for carrying on this worldwide campaign against heathenism. About 4,500 representative men coming from every state in the Union will attend this congress, to be held in the Auditorium.

One Who Came

A Memorial Day Story

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

She had been looking for him all through the warm spring, and now, late in May, she felt that he must come. Another week would bring the 30th of the month, and Memorial day, with its tender observance of all the beloved dead, would come to crush down her cherished hope of Robert's return.

Esther looked wistfully across the pasture, and tears filled her blue eyes until hillside and pointed cedars were a dark blur.

When she had wiped them away some one was coming wearily down the narrow path—some one tall and thin, dressed in dark clothing, with a gray felt hat on his drooping head.

The man did not lift his eyes from the ground, but tramped steadily on, with his gaze fixed on the winding path under his feet. When the path ceased at the fence he looked up and saw Esther gazing at him longingly, lovingly, but there was no recollection in his glance, merely undisguised wonderment.

Esther's radiant smile faded as she searched the handsome face for some sign of recognition. It was Robert Webb, paler, thinner and curiously changed in expression, and yet it was Robert. A sudden terror filled her soul.

"Robert," she cried softly, "don't you know me?"

He stared curiously at her while a slow red burned into his thin cheeks. He lifted the gray hat and showed dark hair streaked plentifully with white.

"I am afraid you have made a mistake," he said in a deep, musical voice that was like Robert's own tones. "My name is Robert, but I am sure I would have remembered you if we had met before. I came to see Mr. Lane. I was directed to take the short cut across the lots from the station. Is this his farm?"

Esther shrank back. "Yes, this is Mr. Lane's farm. You will find him at the house or barn. Take the path through the orchard."

With a murmured word of thanks the man replaced his hat, leaped the fence and disappeared in the gathering twilight of the orchard.

When Esther went into the house her fair hair was wet with dew, but her eyes were very bright and shining.

In the sitting room they were all gathered about the evening lamp. The light fell on the red table cover and was reflected in the comfortable furnishings of the room. Mr. Lane was reading the almanac with an interest quite unabated by a long winter's pursuit of his closely printed pages.

Helen and Agatha were embroidering. They all glanced up as Esther entered the room, blinking at the light.

"You'll catch your death out in the dampness, child," remonstrated her mother as Esther sat down in a low rocker beside her. "We've been wishing you'd come in and give us a little music."

"You promised to practice that duet with me, Esther," complained Helen. "I don't see why you want to run away every night after supper. You can't guess what's happened since you've been gone," she added teasingly.

The color leaped into Esther's pale cheeks. She struggled for a moment with her quickening breath before her words found utterance. "What has happened, Nell?" she asked, with assumed carelessness.

"Nothing at all," interposed Mrs. Lane, smiling. "except that father's tickled to death because he's got some one to help him all summer."

"Who is it?" asked Esther.

"A man who came here tonight. The station master sent him, knowing your father was put to it for help on the farm. He's young and willing, though he's a little out of health. He's been a soldier, and he wants to have a summer farming it to get back his health again."

"And likewise fill his pocketbook," yawned Farmer Lane, stretching himself luxuriously. "I guess we'll get along as well as may be. He's a fine, pleasant spoken young chap, but he's seen a sight of trouble, I take it. His hair's as white as my own. He's coming tomorrow."

"What is his name?" asked Esther in a muffled voice.

"Robert Munson. Looks like some one I've seen before. Can't think who it is to save my life," said her father, rising and filling his pipe at the mantelshelf.

With a quick movement Esther arose and was gone from the room.

"Father Lane," exclaimed Agatha in a stage whisper, "it's just come to me who this man looks like! He looks enough like Robert Webb to be his own brother!"

They cast startled glances at one another. "I declare if he doesn't!" gasped Mrs. Lane at last. "I hope Esther won't notice it. It would upset her terribly, pa."

"That may be," returned Mr. Lane decidedly. "Esther's mourned over Rob Webb just two years longer than he was worth. If he'd cared anything for her he'd stayed behind and made a home for her instead of running off and joining the army as if he had no responsibilities at home. Miss Webster was used to seeing him new crop around. She's got to get cured of this grieving business, by George!"

The large brown hat struck the table with a force that startled the three women. They watched Mr. Lane march from the room with angry strides, and when the door had closed with an echoing slam their heads bent together in whispered consultation.

Memorial day was a holiday, and the Lanes usually spent it with relatives in an adjoining village. This day was no exception, and so it was quite early in the morning that they drove away in the comfortable survey, leaving Robert Munson standing bareheaded by the wide white gate.

Esther had said nothing about going to the cemetery to place flowers on Robert's grave. She would wait until their return, and when the crowd had left the graveyard she would climb the hill and place her offering there, alone in the sunset.

When the long day was closing they came home again. Esther with her arms full of white blossoms gleaned from her aunt's garden. The new farm hand had taken advantage of the holiday and was nowhere to be seen, so Farmer Lane put up the horses and the others went indoors.

"I'll be back presently, mother," said Esther, tossing her hat on the table and gathering up her flowers. "I'm going to the cemetery now. Lion will come with me."

"Very well, dear," said Mrs. Lane. Esther whisked to the dog and walked through the orchard to the pasture. Robert Munson was leaning on the fence, looking at the reflected lights on the distant hills.

"I am going up on the hill, Robert. Will you come along and carry my flowers?" asked Esther bravely.

"Certainly, Miss Esther," he said pleasantly, and so together they crossed the pasture and climbed the hill to the place where the tall white shaft made a memorial for the fallen soldier boy. All about the base beautiful flowers were strewn, and some one had placed a little flag in the green turf. Robert Munson was looking curiously at the inscription when Esther gently took the flowers from his grasp and dropped them on the ground at his feet. Then she placed her hands on his shoulders and looked into his eyes.

"Robert, Robert!" she cried tragically. "Don't you know me—won't you ever recognize me again?"

Very tenderly Robert Munson took her cold hands in his warm ones, and the firm pressure of his grasp seemed to give her wavering strength more courage.

"Miss Esther," he said gently, "whom do you take me for? Who do you think I am?"

"You are Robert Webb!" she cried eagerly. "See—this stone was erected for you. Your father died of a broken heart when you were killed, and your mother went away to live with her sister. I am here. I have not forgotten. See—I have kept your picture all these years. I have worn it always here." She drew away her hands and pulled a chain from her neck and opened a round locket. The picture therein was that of a young man, much younger than Robert Munson, and, while there was a resemblance, it might have been more in expression than in actual features.

"You have made a great mistake, Miss Esther," said Munson at last. "I am so sorry. I wish I knew what to say to you. I suppose you think the report of Webb's death was an error and that I am he, but it is not so."

He stretched out a hand to support her wavering figure, but she leaned for support against the white marble. "I have seen service in the Philippines, and I did know Bob Webb for a short time, and I know he was killed. I am sorry to have to tell you this. As for myself, I wanted a season in the country at hard work to recover my health. It is sheer chance that I came to Little River and was directed to your father's farm. I have parents and brothers and sisters in Boston—in fact, I am afraid I can prove only too well that I am not Robert Webb."

He looked down at her with infinite pity in his fine eyes—a pity that was so akin to something warmer that she seemed to feel it infold her like a comforting garment.

"I am so sorry I have annoyed you. What must you think of me? You see—" Esther broke down and sobbed bitterly, and Robert Munson stood beside her with a friendly hand pressing her shoulder. It was with his handkerchief that Esther wiped away her tears, while he knelt down and deftly strewed the flowers she had brought about the foot of the shaft. Then he rose to his tall height and held out his hand.

"Come, Miss Esther; let us go back home again. There are light and life beyond as well as here. We who are left behind have our work to do in the world. I'm a clumsy fellow at expressing myself, but try to look on the bright side of things."

It was a quiet walk home again across the pasture and through the orchard, and it proved to be many a long day before Esther took the same route again. There seemed to be a veil lifted after that day. Life was brighter, better, and love seemed not to be the hopeless thing she had one time believed.

When another later day came and another Robert told his love by the orchard fence the swallows dipped in the pale light, and the bats darted from the shadows, and the song that the whippoorwill sang seemed a psalm of joy, and the whole world was bathed in a rosy light that was not the reflection from the sunset.

The King's Surgeon

Story of an Escape From the Guillotine During the French Revolution.

By MOLLIE K. WETHERELL.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

One evening—it was the latter part of the eighteenth century—a carriage stopped at the door of an inn midway between Versailles and Paris. A gentleman whose dress and manner denoted that he was of some importance alighted, entered the inn, where the landlord stood obsequiously rubbing his hands, and ordered a supper. While it was being prepared the landlord was hopping about, now running into the kitchen to hurry up the cook and now returning to the gentleman to assure him that he would not have long to wait.

Meanwhile the gentleman went out on to the piazza for the purpose of stretching his legs during his halt. He found there something that interested him—a boy about sixteen years old, pale and emaciated, sitting in an iron chair. The gentleman approached him and began to question him.

"You do not seem well. What is your trouble?"

"My right leg is drawn up, and I cannot straighten it. My back, too, is getting crooked."

"How long since this trouble came upon you?"

"Since a year ago when the young Marquis of Treville kicked me."

The gentleman's brow lowered. At that moment supper was announced, and he went into the dining room.

"Who is the boy outside with his disease and spine curvature?" he asked of the landlord, who waited on him.

"He is my son, seigneur."

"He has a fine head and an intellectual face. It is a pity that he should suffer thus. He would if relieved make a good man."

"It was that little villain Treville."

"If you will send him to me at Paris I will see if I cannot straighten his leg and prevent the further curvature of his spine. I am the king's surgeon."

"If you will do that, M. le Docteur, we will all bless you, but I fear I have not so much money as you will expect."

"There will be no money to pay. I am going direct to Paris, and if you like I will take your boy with me in my carriage. He will travel more comfortably and be less liable to injury than if he is carried in one of your country wagons."

When the doctor was driving away, beside him, made comfortable with pillows and rugs, sat Jean Demaurier. That night he was placed in a hospital, and the next morning Dr. Du Faur began a course of treatment.

During the next dozen or fifteen years the American colonists had thrown off the kingly yoke and become an independent people with a government of their own. The French, who for centuries had been bled by their kings and their nobles, ground down to the very earth, encouraged by the Americans' example, had begun to turn upon their oppressors. One day a mob marched by the inn where Dr. Du Faur had stopped for supper, going to Versailles to bring the king to Paris. Jean Demaurier had forgiven the young noble who had kicked him, but he had not forgotten that so great was the power of the aristocrats that he had not dared resent his treatment. He had thrown himself into the cause of the revolution, and when the people marched by his farm he joined them. Then when they came back with the king in his carriage Jean continued on with them to Paris, where he became one of the minor leaders.

Then began that reign of terror based on a determination on the part of a people who had suffered oppression for centuries to wipe their oppressors from the face of the earth. In the Place de la Revolution they sat up a machine for carrying out their work. The prisons were filled with aristocrats, consisting of nobles and their sympathizers, and whenever the doors opened out poured a crowd who were to be eliminated by the guillotine from the problem of French politics.

Dr. Du Faur was not noble, but his wife was or had been, for he was a widower, and his daughter had married the young Count Destelles at the breaking out of the revolution. The doctor, having been the royal surgeon, was deemed of more importance than the other two and was arrested among the first. The arrest of his daughter and his son-in-law soon followed.

One morning the doctor was brought up before the citizen judge of his arrondissement for what was called a trial. The doctor saw a man apparently not yet thirty sitting behind a pine table who was to be his judge. The man looked at the doctor, and it was evident that some commotion was going on within the former's brain.

And well there might. The judge whose duty it was to find the prisoner guilty and send him to the guillotine was none other than Jean Demaurier, whom the doctor had found a cripple and made a strong man. Demaurier was a trifle bent and walked with a slight limp, but he was a very different man from what he would have been had it not been for the efforts of the surgeon. The judge gave one look at the man who had been sent to him that he might sign his death warrant, then, lowering his eyes to a sheet of paper before him, began to question him and take down his answers. For his own life he dare not favor his benefactor.

"Your name?" he asked.

"Alphonse Du Faur."

"Occupation?"

"Surgeon."

"I believe it is you who have kept the tyrant Louis Capet and his family from the grave where they should have laid long ago."

"I was the king's physician."

Those standing about scowled and expected that the next words would be "Take him to the guillotine!"

"And do you think," continued the judge, "that you who have kept alive this oppressor of the people should die the same death as other aristocrats?"

The doctor did not answer the question.

"Take him to the temporary prison in the Rue Veuve Grand. I wish to consult the committee to learn if it is their pleasure that this man, who has been closer than any other in the confidence of the tyrant, shall die an ordinary death. He should be burned."

These words were spoken with all the bitterness the citizen judge could throw into them. Not one present suspected that his intention was to save Dr. Du Faur from the guillotine that morning and to place him where he might get access to him with a view to saving him altogether. The doctor was taken to the building mentioned, and another prisoner was brought up for condemnation.

The next morning Citizen Demaurier drove up in a cart to the prison where the doctor was confined and presented an order for him signed by the committee. The doctor was placed in the cart, and Demaurier, telling the officials that he needed no guard for the prisoner, being himself well armed, drove away. Pursuing his way down the street, he soon reached the river bank and the outskirts of Paris. Then he stopped and said to his prisoner:

"You do not know me, M. le Docteur?"

"You are the citizen judge."

"More than that, I am Jean Demaurier."

"And who is Jean Demaurier?"

"Have you done so many kindnesses as to forget those you have benefited? Do you not remember stopping for supper on your way from Versailles at an inn one evening fifteen years ago? There you found a boy who had been crippled by a noble. You took him to Paris and made quite a respectable figure of him. See, I scarcely limp."

He got down from the cart and walked back and forth.

"And you are that boy?" exclaimed the doctor.

"I am."

"What are you going to do with me?"

"Take you in my carriage—this cart—to the inn from which you took me to Paris in your carriage and not only save your back and your leg, but especially your neck. I shall hide you there as long as necessary and then run you over the border."

"You are very kind, but I do not care to leave my daughter and my son-in-law here to die."

"Where are they?"

"In the conciergerie, I believe."

"Very well; I shall see what I can do for them. I am thoroughly trusted, being known as the man who was crippled by a noble. I will take you to my home, return and possibly may bring those you love with me."

"But will I not be missed and you be charged with setting me free?"

"I think not. They have so many heads to chop off that the moment a prisoner disappears he is saved. If I am asked about you I will tell them you have been tortured and executed in private. Now lie down in the cart, and I will drive on."

Jean, before reaching his home, where his load was likely to be seen by his neighbors, stopped beside a field where there was grain in sheaf and put enough over his burden to conceal him, then drove on and turned in at his farm by a lane leading to the barn.

The doctor remained concealed in the loft of Demaurier's barn for a week. Meanwhile Demaurier was in Paris, endeavoring to find the Count and Countess Destalles. They had become separated, and Demaurier spent considerable time discovering where they were. Then after much difficulty he succeeded in getting possession of them. This he accomplished by bribing their jailer, and on pretense of removing them to another prison he took them to his inn, but this time the journey was accomplished at the dead of night. The meeting between the doctor and his daughter and her husband at midnight in the loft of a barn, though they could only distinguish one another by their voices, was indescribably happy.

The next morning Jean Demaurier put the three refugees in a deep farm wagon, in the bottom of which he had bored breathing holes, and covered them to the depth of several feet with grain. Then, opening his barn, he drove out and into the road, soon after turning into another leading northward. On that road he jogged with his load till evening, when he relieved the refugees from their uncomfortable position, and they slept in a wood. They dare not take any other conveyance, fearing to be recognized, so the next day they kept to their cart, traveling as grain, and at last crossed the border. There they knelt and, locked in one another's arms, gave thanks to heaven.

Jean returned to Paris. He was eventually guillotined, but, strangely enough, not for assisting in the escape of the doctor and his family. His fall was on account of one of those changes wherein one faction came up to dominate another.

NATURAL HISTORY

Wherein is Related a Tale of a Farmer and a Possum.

PLAYS DEAD WHILE HANGING

Only Way to Kill Him is to Beat Him to a Jelly—One the Soldiers Lost the Press and Poetry Tell a Lot About the Animal That Slows.

By M. QUAD.

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

A possum he lives in a tree, And a jelly old fellow was he. Took life as he found it, And walked all around it, Which is the best way, don't you see?

WHAT is called the Virginia possum is found in almost every middle and southern state, but while the farmer often catches sight of foxes, coons and woodchucks he seldom gets a squint at a possum. The animal hardly ever moves out by day, and at night he is very shy. He makes his nest in a hollow tree, hollow log or among the roots of a tree, and he hides it well. He is a poor runner and not much of a fighter, though if he once gets his teeth into a dog he will hang on until killed. It is owing to this grip of his jaws that the fox, the coon and the "chuck" give him half the path when they meet at night. Any one of them can roll him over, but so tough is his hide that they might chew on him for an hour without hurting him.

"BUT POSSUM HE PLAYED."

Near by lived the good Farmer Dwight. And the possum he went every night. He went looking for scraps.

And he thought that perhaps With the dog he'd get up a fight.

The possum does not wander far from his lair. This is because he is like no other animal in his eating. He will eat fowls, young rabbits, birds, eggs, roots, berries, vegetables or all sorts, scraps from the table, mice, bugs and almost everything else you can think of. He can therefore get his living around any farm. If living near a marsh he will feed on crabs and frogs. If there are snakes on a farm he will kill them out. A light often takes place between a possum and a black snake, but the former is always the winner. It is said that the bite of a rattlesnake will not poison him. In gathering fruit from a tree the possum hangs to a limb by his tail and uses his forefeet to gather with. He can eat more persimmons than any three colored men, but when it comes to the watermelon he doesn't care for it.

He'd pick up a chick now and then Or strangle a goshawk or hen. He was after the best. And he ate it with zest Before he'd returned to his den.

The two oddest things about the possum is the way he uses his tail to hang by and his "playing dead" when attacked and overcome. If the farmer clubs one to death, or thinks he does, the animal will remain quiet for hours and then get up and walk off. To actually kill him with a club he must be beaten to a jelly. He has a hide on him like a bull, and he has few nerves to feel pain. A bulldog may worry one for an hour after he is supposed to be dead, and he will come to life again and make for his tree.

There were nights in the full of the moon When he was mistook for a coon. And the dog made him hump Around bushes and stumps And get out of that pretty soon.

Naturalists used to assert that when the mother possum had a litter of five the old man turned to and ate up three of them so as to keep the number down where all could make a good living. This has been found to be incorrect. As soon as the house is full of children papa takes his departure and finds another boarding house for himself. They may live or die, but it's nothing to him. It is only at such times that if he meets another daddy possum he will get up a row without the least excuse. He's mad about it, you see; thinks two in the family enough.

Three times he was caught in a trap And over the head got a rap. But possum he played. And living he stayed.

And winked as he woke from his nap. In the New York zoo several years ago a possum was struck fifteen times with a baseball bat in the hands of a strong man. He went dead, and a man was set to watch him. He was watched for an hour, but as he stayed dead the watcher went away for half an hour. Upon his return—do possum! The next day the animal was as lively as if he had not been clubbed. During the civil war some Union soldiers captured a possum in Happiness in Sleep.

I saw once how like sleep was to life in the deep waters. A man who to my waking eyes looked cold and starved and ragged sat upon one of the benches on the embankment. He was sleeping, and I knew from his face that then at least he did not count himself miserable. But presently a policeman came and shook the sleeper into waking life. Then all the violence of the world seemed to be let loose upon this wreck of a man. He shook and blinked his eyes and breathed with heavy spasms. It was just as when a fish is caught out of the depth of the sea and suddenly cast into a basket. I have seen mackerel shake and gasp like this poor man suddenly caught up out of the native depths of sleep. Or if you think that a fish thus dying is only an amusing and not a painful sight then think of what it might be if some giant of fable could catch us up out of our native air into the space between the stars. Would we not willingly sink back again into the depth of air? So it is when the loud world lets us glide down into sleep.—London Outlook.

His Name in the Directory.

"One funny thing I have learned about human nature," said the drug store cashier, "is the habit many people have of marking their own names in the city directory. They do that because the directory is the only place where their names ever get into print, and it has such a fascination for them that they can't resist calling attention to it. A funny old man who likes to talk tells me that he has made special trips to different parts of the city just to mark his name in the directories of the neighborhood. He puts a little cross in red ink before it. I asked him what good it did. He said none possibly, although he is a teacher of languages and may get a few calls on account of that queer advertisement. But his is an exceptional case. Not many persons spend time and money hunting city directories, but every time they happen to see a new one they can't help looking up their names and putting some kind of a mark around them."—New York Sun.

The Chamais Trail.
Every day at noon at Grindelwald there is a rush of visitors for the tele-scopes in order to gaze at one of the most interesting natural scenes in the Alps, "the chamais trail." Regularly at this hour a herd of twenty to thirty chamais may be seen passing in Indian file up the yawning abysses of the precipitous Mettenberg rocks, separating two glaciers, the male animals leading the way, the king of the herd keeping twenty yards in advance and on the watch. At the bottom of the Mettenberg where the slope is freed from snow, the chamais find a meager subsistence when their usual feeding grounds are under deep snow. It is a curious fact that the chamais descend to their feeding grounds at dawn, when there is little likelihood of avalanches, and return to their haunts at an hour when avalanches—for this portion of the mountain has frequent avalanches—have already fallen and the danger is past.—Geneva Cor. Pall Mall Gazette.

FIFTEEN MILLION QUARTS OF STRAWBERRIES.

Delaware Season Now At Its Height—Heavy Shipments Being Made By New Produce Exchange At Dover, Delaware.

Delaware's greatest strawberry season now shows shipments, over the Delaware Railroad of 14,360,711 quarts of home-grown strawberries. This is as against a total shipment for last year of 9,270,221 quarts. Strawberries ran regularly all last week, about one million quarts being shipped from peninsula farms every day.

It is understood that the Delaware Produce Exchange, with headquarters at Dover, Del., did a shipping business on berries alone last week to the amount of $60,000, although this farmers' organization has only been in existence a few months.

A new and valuable discovery to the fruit growers of Delaware is the so-called Bethel late strawberry, now being grown in large quantities by H. F. Thomas and other nurserymen and horticulturists near Harrington, Del. The Bethel, about the size of the Gandy, has noteworthy shipping qualities and stands up well the second day. It is contended that this variety is good for four weeks of constant picking and, coming at this time, it averages the grower about $3.00 a crate. Mr. Thomas' Monday pickings were thirteen 48-quart and one 32-quart crates, and these were sold to the Produce exchange at Bridgeville for 9 cents per quart.

Oil For Practice Drills.

Captain Owens, of Company I, is busy getting his men ready to start for Camp at the Rifle Range in Anne Arundel County next Monday for a five day's practice drill. The men will be at the range for five days and will return home to get ready to start for Gettysburg on July 1st. The Camp at Gettysburg will be for ten days when some real warfare will be carried on.

CAPT. H. W. OWENS.

Captain Owens says he will have at least 50 men in line on both occasions. Company I is getting along nicely and the men are taking great interest in the work of the company. Captain Owens expects his men to show up well at the rifle practice and also at Gettysburg.

Episcopal Clergy Convene.

At Wednesday's session of the forty-second convention of the diocese of Eastern of the Protestant Episcopal Church, Rt. Rev. W. Eorbes Adams presiding, the election of four clerical and four lay delegates to the general convention, which meets in Cincinnati, was taken up. There was a lively fight in the convention over these elections. The clerical delegates elected to the general convention are: Rev. E. N. Rich, of Easton; Rev. Henry B. Martin, of Chestertown; Rev. Dr. Weaver, of Princess Anne; Rev. W. B. Stehl, of Centerville; supplemental, Rev. T. B. Barlow, of Cambridge; Rev. W. Y. Beiven, of Longwoods; Rev. J. G. Gault, of Denton; Rev. David Howard, of Salisbury.

There was a spirited contest for election of lay delegates, and several ballots were necessary. On the first ballot, W. H. Gibson, of Centerville; Col. J. S. Muse, of Cambridge; and S. E. Whitman, of Easton, were chosen. The following were finally elected: Col. W. H. Gibson, of Centerville; Gen. J. S. Muse, of Cambridge; S. E. Whitman, of Easton; and Edwin Valliant, of Church Hill; alternates, Mr. Collins, of Snow Hill; Dr. Ohas-Rose, of Cordova; E. T. Massey, of Massey; and Judge C. F. Holland, of Salisbury.

The division of the North Elk Parish, which has been a question before the convention for two years, was again postponed. The convention adjourned to meet next year at Christ Church, Easton.

MAYOR BOUNDS' FIRST MESSAGE RECOMMENDS IMPROVEMENTS.

Congratulates Retiring Officials On Success Of Administration—Suggests The Purchase Of Public Hitching Ground To Relieve Congestion On Street—Asks For Another Police Officer.

Mayor W. F. Bounds presented to the Council Monday evening his first message, the full text of which is printed below. In this message he asks the Council to provide funds for the employment of another policeman, and suggests the purchase or lease of a piece of land for a hitching ground for country teams, so as to relieve the crowded condition of our business streets on Saturdays. The message follows:

Salisbury, June 6, 1910.
To the Honorable City Council of Salisbury

Gentlemen:—In compliance with the provisions of the Charter of Salisbury, I beg leave, in the capacity of Mayor, to submit to you for your consideration, a brief report of the conditions of our City, and at the same time, make some recommendations and suggestions, that seem to me to be desirable for the advancement and progress of the sanitary and commercial interests of the city.

MAYOR W. F. BOUNDS.

In entering upon the duties of the office of Mayor, I ask your hearty co-operation in administering the affairs of the City, to the end that an equal degree, and if possible a greater degree of progress be made.

I desire, and do hereby express my pleasure and extend my congratulations to the retiring Mayor and the City Council for the progressive spirit with which they have executed the duties of their respective positions, and the interest they have manifested in looking after the interests of the City; and while many and extensive improvements have been made, and some good systems inaugurated, yet I trust that Salisbury has not reached the zenith of its power and that there are still many opportunities to advance its interests, and that of its citizens. We are growing rapidly in numbers, which means an increase in personal responsibility in an equal degree; and on account of this growth, new conditions arise, which must be met, and handled so as to be for the advancement and progress of the City along all lines.

I bespeak for the Council the same progressive and business-like spirit in the performance of its duties during my administration as has characterized your actions in administering the affairs of the City in the past.

A town is judged by the business spirit of its people and the general conditions of its streets and sidewalks. Our City will compare favorably in this respect upon and along its principal thoroughfares. A pavement of a permanent character adorns our business thoroughfares, and while this was wise and desirable, I desire to call your attention to the needs and requirements of various other sections of our City in this regard. I do not at this time advocate an extension of bitulithic or brick street improvements, but suggest that all resident streets of the City, especially those much used by the traveling public should be improved by shelling, grading, curbing, and guttering, and thereby properly drained, which means a corresponding increase in the durability of the street surface. The streets in suburban sections of the City should as early as possible, receive the attention of the Council, and be shelled, and sidewalks be required to be laid, as a number of much traveled streets in the City have never been shelled. Before entering upon the work of improving any streets, the same should be properly surveyed, and street lines established, and should the requirements of the traveling public demand a widening of any such streets, same should be done before said improvements are made. There furthermore seems to be a tendency on the part of property owners in dedicating to the City, streets laid out through their lands, to lay out said streets too narrow for the public interest, the beauty of the City, and the welfare of the property owners themselves, and I would suggest that no street be accepted by the City unless same is at least thirty-five feet wide, and where conditions will permit, forty feet wide, and should any street be laid out of a less width, that the Council forthwith pass necessary ordinances to widen and condemn property to make it the proper width.

The Street Commissioner and Police Department should be instructed along this line, and any infringement upon this rule should be forthwith reported to the Mayor and Council.

During the past few years a number of large sewers have been laid in the City, but there is a great demand and necessity for more. The streets cannot be properly drained, nor a great amount of filth eliminated from the streets and properties of the City until the City is properly sewered. I would therefore urge that the Council make improvements along this line as fast as the City's financial condition will permit.

I would suggest that, after the establishment of a grade, the property owners abutting a number of streets in our City be required to lay sidewalks in front of same, and unless same are laid as provided by ordinances, that the City forthwith lay same, and collect costs for doing as required by law, and when said sidewalks are laid, the city shell and curb said streets as the needs of the respective streets may require.

Some of the streets along which sidewalks should be laid are as follows: East Locust street, Pine street, Vine Street, Elizabeth street from Watson's property to Railroad Ave. Fooks Street, Upton Street, these improvements would mean a great deal to the City as well as the property owners; other streets the sidewalks along which are in bad repair and should be relaid, are as follows: N. Division street, from the B. C. & A. R. R. to Northern corporate limits; Poplar Hill Avenue between Broad and Isabella streets; and portions of William Street; Isabella street, Broad Street, Newton Street, Smith Street, and East Church Street beyond the N. Y., P. & N. R. R.

In curbing and guttering streets, part of the costs of which is to be paid by the abutting property owners, I would suggest that said work be done upon the signing and presenting to the Council by said property owners, of a petition asking for same, signed by two-thirds of said owners.

Our City is in need of a garbage system, and I would recommend the establishment of same as early as possible. Another matter which has been spoken of in times past, and which at this juncture is a necessity for our City namely: a hitching ground. I would suggest that the Council take this matter up with a view to securing same, and thereby keep our streets in a more presentable condition for the Sabbath; as a great deal of waste is scattered on the streets Saturday night which remains until Monday.

I desire to commend the step taken by the Council in the extension of water mains in the city, and trust that the work will be pushed as vigorously as possible, and shortly every section of the City will be protected from the ravages of fire.

The extensive building operations going on requires the services of a Building Inspector. Buildings are be-

MARLEY LEWIS ARRESTED. MAY RESULT SERIOUSLY.

Enters Home Of Officer Crouch And Is Found In Sleeping Room Of Girl. Lodged In Jail To Await Result Of Hearing.

Found in the sleeping room of Miss Lillie Crouch, the 18 year old daughter of Night Watchman James Crouch, Marley Lewis, 35 year old, was arrested Thursday night at a late hour by Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith. Miss Crouch, who had retired for the night, was awakened about eleven o'clock by a noise at her bed side. Becoming very much alarmed at the sight of a man kneeling at the side of her bed, Miss Crouch shouted for help. It was then that she recognized Lewis, who lives only a short distance from the Crouch home.

The cries of the girl created considerable excitement in the neighborhood. Officer Smith was at once summoned and arrested Lewis after locating him in his mother's home. He was lodged in jail to await a hearing.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Study For To-morrow. "The Canaanish Woman." Ably Discussed by A Local Writer.

Matt 15:21-28. Golden Text: "Great is thy faith; be it unto thee as thou wilt."

The Canaanish Woman. The time of our lesson is immediately following the last, in the third year of Christ's ministry. Our lesson of May 29th opened with, "And Jesus departed thence," on June 5th it was, "And straightway Jesus constrained his disciples to get into a ship, and go before Him," and again to-day it is, "Then Jesus went thence." We have been impressed with the popularity of Jesus as we studied these lessons, and yet we find that amidst His popularity the animosities engendered by His teachings became so great, and hatred of Him so fierce that it was not well that He remain long at any one place. Yet He was most clear and emphatic in His teaching, and demonstrated it without less powerful words than that any prior time.

The first part of this fifteenth chapter, verses one to twenty-one is a sample of His teaching. The scribes and Pharisees had sent to Him something like a delegation, and charged certain things against the disciples. This delegation was from Jerusalem. They inquired of Jesus, "Why do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders? for they wash not their hands when they eat bread." This did not imply that the disciples were filthy or habitually unclean, but that they omitted certain ceremonial laws of the elders.

What was this law of washing hands? Not the law of Moses, but precepts and traditional law of man handed down by word from generation. The scribes were the interpreters of these traditional laws, and thus controlled the minds of the people, and eventually treated these laws as of more authority than the law of Moses. One of these laws was a ceremonial washing of hands to signify absolution from ceremonial defilement in the ordinary acts of life.

Jesus did not consider this as necessary, neither to be the law of Moses, it was superstitious, and of no effect. This kind of law was so applied, and made so compulsory to the masses that they had become burdensome. Knowing this to be the great contention in the minds of the leaders of the Jewish Church Jesus answered boldly, and by example that could not but be understood.

Said Jesus, "Why do you transgress the law of God, through Moses? For He says, Honor thy father and mother, that is love, cherish, and support them, but ye say that whose sayeth, 'It is a gift,' that is to father or mother who needs your support, my goods are dedicated to the Lord, you are free of obligation to your parent, yet still possess your goods. This is one of your traditions, this nullifies the law of God, destroys the law though Moses. You honor God with your lips, and out of your hearts, far from Him, comes hypocrisy, and you are defiled. Ceremonial law does not relieve you, out of the heart comes both good and evil, you have become a perverse generation. This witnessed against them that their works were evil, that they had turned from the commandments of God, to those of men."

Did the delegation understand? Yes for (in verse 12) the disciples came and told Jesus that they were offended by this awful arraignment of their many misdeeds. This growing hatred and opposition drove Jesus into retirement again.

He went into the coast near Tyre and Sidon, in Phoenicia. These people were entirely apart from Israel and Jesus sought to rest here, but heedlessness learned of Him, a mother broke into the quiet of a heart of love that never closes to a mother's prayer. She sought comfort in sorrow, relief could come to her through blessing and healing another.

This Phoenician woman displayed an understanding of Israel and the Messiah and also a faith in Christ's power that shames many of us. Jesus was silent at first when the woman sought help; we are not told why. Neither do we know why God is sometimes silent when we go to Him in prayer. But it is a great heart of love we approach and the answer will come, perhaps first in instruction and guidance leading toward the answer and again to strengthen our determination and faith. This woman's faith prevailed.

Jesus was sent to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. Three years he devoted to them. He had always sought mankind, and came to the whole world, but to Israel at this time to many of them as received him, and these he sent into the world to reclaim it.

The faith of the world is not scorned but grows more and more, and is to-day the power that is bringing change into the world.

The example of humble, trustful, persevering faith is here set for us. The oriental mothers are most persistent seekers of assistance, a persistence characterizes their conduct that far exceeds that of the west. It is the outgrowth of social conditions never known or felt by the western mind. The fundamentals of our western, social mind were laid in the teachings of Christianity, lent abroad by Christ through his followers, yet evil has been so ever present with man, and the love at God so long suffering, that these truths, spoken by Jesus to the world that day are still justly applicable to this day and generation. We are not far removed from the scribe of old. We have God's law, we know it, and then begin to make laws to suit ourselves, laws of man for man, and many of them are man's excuse to himself to alleviate a disturbed conscience. Hypocritical ceremony of to-day is as bad as in the day when Christ taught in Galilee.

Mrs. D. A. Chatham, 517 S. Division St., Salisbury, Md., says: "About fifteen years ago I first felt kidney trouble coming on, but I neglected to attend to it until my condition grew much worse. My back ached continually and after I sat in a chair for any length of time, I had to catch hold of something for support when I got up. I rubbed myself with liniments, but I found only slight relief and I was in despair. Two years ago I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at White and Leonard's Drug Store, and they soon brought relief. I have since taken this remedy off and on, and I am very grateful for the benefit it has always brought."

REVIEW OF MR. ROOSEVELT'S AFRICAN AND EUROPEAN TOURS

How He Won the Honor of Being the Most Distinguished Private Citizen on Earth.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.
(Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.)

THE fact seems to be pretty well established that during his fifteen months abroad Colonel Roosevelt has bagged several lions and other big game in Africa and most of the royal thrones and other big people in Europe. His trip filled the Smithsonian Institution with specimens and the newspapers with the news of his adventures. Of a truth he has been the most talked about traveler who has visited the monarchs of Europe since Napoleon Bonaparte made social calls at the head of the French army.

On the stage of the old world the

Where He Has Been and What He Has Done. Kings Met on Terms of Equality.

Realists and spoke for the British government. In Rome he refused to meet the pope unless he could retain his entire freedom. In Austria he met on equal terms the emperor and Kossuth, the friend of liberty. In France he spoke vigorously against race suicide and in favor of the homely virtues. In Christiania he lifted his voice, already hoarse and frayed, in favor of peace, provided it be the peace of righteousness. In Denmark he walked the ground that Hamlet walked and would have talked with the ghost as a brother if the apparition had dared put in an appearance. In Germany he spent long hours with the kaiser, witnessed a sham battle and discoursed on the fighting edge. In Holland he greeted the burghers as fellow Dutchmen, and in England he accepted the sad duty of representing his country at the funeral of the king. Everywhere he was the same Roosevelt we had known at home, as keen in his pleasures, as untiring, as democratic and as full of information on all possible subjects.

colonel has played many star parts—mighty hunter, faunal naturalist, college lecturer and the most distinguished private citizen on earth. He has met kings on terms of equality. He has preached the good old gospel of manly endeavor with nations as his congregations.

In Africa he became a child of the forest and the veldt, kept going for

He made the name of private citizen a badge of distinction.

As to the number of kings he gathered in his collection of specimens it is impossible to be numerically exact, but to the best of my recollection he bagged them all except Nicholas of Russia and Alfonso of Spain. Perhaps he overlooked them in the rush. But with these two possible exceptions he saw everything and everybody worth seeing, went through Europe with an express train force that gave the effects monarchies nervous prostration, took the degree of LL. D. at Cambridge, propelled words of advice like a human Gatling gun and made John Bull apoplectic by advising him either to govern Egypt or get out.

Cannot Escape Publicity.

It is a great thing to be president of the United States. It is greater to be as big a man outside the presidency as in it. Some ex-presidents have raised chickens, some have become college lecturers or business men, some have been elected to congress, and some have gone into innocuous desuetude. Only one has become a faunal naturalist and the big noise of two hemispheres. There is none like him; none ever was or ever will be. It is impossible that there should be another like him in this land or any other beside the seven seas.

Colonel Roosevelt went to Africa to escape publicity. Did he escape it? Is it possible that he should escape it anywhere? When he is absent people wonder what he is doing. When he is present they wonder what he will do next. There is no keeping such a man out of the newspapers. If he were to hunt for the south pole his every move would be chronicled. If he were to live in Zululand, in China or in Hoboken it would be the same. The reporters would find him out, and if they did not find him out they would write about him anyway. Roosevelt is a front page character. Tidings of him run as naturally to display type as the river flows to the ocean or the sparks fly upward.

eight, ten or twelve hours a day, defied the fevers, waded through swamps and shot all the game that got in his way provided it was big enough. In Egypt he braved the wrath of the Na-

Nobody knows how far he has traveled since he left us, but he has covered a considerable portion of two continents. He has not been as great a traveler as his successor, but has probably enjoyed it more. He has been over the least civilized and most civilized parts of the globe and has been equally at home in both. He has gone from the virgin jungle to the ancient pyramids where Napoleon said "forty centuries look down upon us." He has ridden a camel in Egypt, listened to the riddle of the sphinx and been met by racing boat loads of American reporters on the waters of the Nile. He has talked volubly, explosively and enthusiastically from Mombasa to Christiania and from Cairo to London.

It was on March 23, 1909, that Colonel Roosevelt left New York by the steamer Hamburg bound for the dark continent. On board he made himself most popular with the other passengers by his democratic and unassuming demeanor and friendliness. He touched at Gibraltar and Messina on the way, but requested that all formal receptions be eliminated, as he traveled only as a private citizen. In Messina he was greeted in person by the king of Italy and was touched by the warm welcome of the people.

which he accepted as a token of their thankfulness for the American relief work following the great earthquake. The one thought he expressed at this demonstration was pride in being an American and in standing for the time as the symbol of the country that had helped these people in their calamity.

The Game Bag in Africa.

The expedition landed on the coast of Africa at Mombasa and proceeded inland to Nairobi, where it established its base. On the trip up it is narrated that the colonel rode on the pilot of the engine. Riding on the pilot is no uncommon occurrence in Africa, though not practiced much in America, for the reason that it causes one to collide too violently with the atmosphere. In the Roosevelt party were Kermil, the son and ostensible photographer, although in the end he proved a better rifle shot than his father; R. J. Cunningham, a mighty English hunter, who went along because of his knowledge of the game and of the country; Major Edgar A. Mearns, J. Alden Loring and Edmund Heller, representing the Smithsonian Institution, and a small army of natives. The party took several trips out from Nairobi and shot enough game to make the Smithsonian Institution look like a petrified section of Africa transplanted to the banks of the Potomac.

After making the game scarce in all the available hunting grounds about Nairobi the expedition proceeded by rail to Port Florence, on the shores of Lake Victoria Nyanza, over which it took passage, then traversed Uganda, threaded its way down the Nile, emerged with a great beating of native tom-toms at Gondokoro, took passage by boat to Khartoum and was soon on its way by rail to Cairo and Alexandria, making stops en route. The hunting was continued till the arrival at Gondokoro.

the game bag was comparatively modest, the colonel's bag containing only seventy-six specimens. Of course this represented but a small part of the kill by the entire expedition, but the other members were chiefly concerned with birds and smaller game. Colonel Roosevelt has the following to his credit: Rhinoceroses, including three white specimens, 15; elephants, 9; lions, 7; giraffes, 10; wildebeests, 4; Thompson's gazelle, 1; hippopotamuses, 4; buffaloes, 8; topi, 5; elands, 4; pythons, ostriches, leopards, hartebeests, boboys, impallas, water bucks, 8 each; zebras, oryx, bush buck, oribis and kob, 1 each.

The Return of Roosevelt

Plans For the Reception In New York—His Western Tour—Will He Run For the Presidency Again?

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

WHEN THE KAISERIN AUGUSTE VICTORIA PASSES THE STATUE OF LIBERTY.

(Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.)

WHEN Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, faunal naturalist, college lecturer and first citizen, steams up New York bay on June 18 he will be met by a reception committee of all the noises that ever have been and some others that are manufactured for the occasion. A faint suggestion of these acoustic disturbances would look something as follows:

Crack! Boom! Toot-toot! Hurray! Has anybody here seen Teddy? Three cheers! (Followed by three cheers and several more.) What's the matter with— Oh, you Teddy! Siss-boom! Toot-toot! Whoop! Wow! Roosevelt forever! He's coming! Yee-e-h-o-o-o! Bing! Bang! Tump-tump-tump! Ow-ow-ow! Hurray for Teddy! Hoop-lal! Hall to the chief! My country, tis— Toot! Boom! Crash!

Raise this to the nth power, then prolong it indefinitely, and you will have the beginning of a hint of what will happen on this noisiest of days.

It will be a wonder. Everybody will be in New York that day either in person or by proxy. And everybody that is at all vociferous will be making some kind of sounds. Most of these sounds will be loud—at least as loud as their authors can contrive. The din thereof will have New Year's night and the Fourth of July rolled into one and then have enough noise left over to supply a large and busy collection of boiler factories.

Twenty Thousand in Line.

The official program of the Roosevelt reception in New York catalogues the event somewhat as follows: The entire reception committee, headed by Chairman Vanderbilt, will stream down the bay to meet the Auguste Victoria on Saturday morning, June 18. It will take the colonel aboard and return to the Battery with all the craft following that can possibly get in line.

"THE WORLD IS MINE!"

Embarking at the Battery, Colonel Roosevelt will be officially welcomed by Mayor Gaynor. Then a land parade will take the place of the one on water, and the former president, former African hunter, former grand adviser and former and present big noise of three continents will ride up Broadway, preceded by the mounted police, mounted band and escort of rough riders and followed by everybody in the United States that has been able to get a place in the procession. It is estimated that there will be 20,000 men in line. Among these will be the Spanish war veterans, Syrians in fezzes, Mayor Jim Dahlman of Omaha with cowboys, Hungarians in national costumes and every other nationality that goes to make up the composite product known as the American people.

It seems good, doesn't it? Just like the old days. After a dreary year of Payne-Aldrich tariff, Uncle Joe, the in-surgeons, Ballinger-Pinchot, Cook-Peray and forty-seven different kinds of investigations the sound of the voices that has been smothered so long in the African jungles will bring back a feeling of mother and home.

Already there is a dental gleam across the Atlantic, and a fresh snap and vivacity are in the air. Teddy is coming home! Get the old bass drum down from the attic, pull the bunting from the closet under the stairway and take out your vocal apparatus and dust it off. The Teddy bear is once more in fashion, the big stick is waving in the breeze, and the spear that knows no brother is glittering in the sun. The trust busters' march need no longer be played with the soft pedal. Throw back the lid, stand on the loud one and come down on all the keys at once. Bang! There—that's better! What a relief it is to do it in the good old way!

Wall Street Not Celebrating.

What about the pessimists who predicted that the colonel was certain to get African fever or the sleeping sickness and those other Wall street prophets who hoped that every lion would do its duty? They are all talking small now. Did they imagine that anything in Africa could withstand the Roosevelt luck? What good are Wall street prophets anyway? Most of them cannot even predict the future movements of stocks and so have to depend on a sure thing game of working the lambs for commissions. "A prophet is not without honor save in his own country" was not spoken of the Wall street brand of soothsayer. He is without honor anywhere under the sun.

Wall street is not celebrating the return of the colonel. That is one reason why the rest of the country is celebrating. Possibly the bulls and bears fear that Roosevelt is coming back to start another hunt in the financial jungle. On the way to Khartoum he dropped one significant remark to the effect that he had harder work ahead than that done in Africa. Just what is that harder work to be? Not writing evidently, for he finished his African book before his return to civilization. Possibly the big trust game has reason for being apprehensive. 'High financiers are timid about everything except taking other people's money, and the mere shine of the

What will he do after all? That is a question the sun is fraught with some home country. Certain gentlemen, press and of the conservative ment, popularly known as the from Elba" crowd, believe he be a candidate for president in Certain other gentlemen of the press and of official station, known of all men as friends of the administration, are just as certain that he will get behind Taft. A man of the name of Herron—George D. Herron—extricated as I recall because of certain matrimonial complications, thinks Roosevelt will become not only president, but virtual emperor; that he will lead the republic and that he will be the beginning of "the new dark ages." Thus the thing is seen to be not without an element of the fantastic, especially when dealt with by a fantastic mind. It is perhaps as well to keep ourselves within the bounds of sanity when dealing with Roosevelt or with other things.

Will Go to Cheyenne.

As to whether he will or will not become a presidential candidate he alone can answer. Of only two things are we sure—that he will have the greatest reception ever given an American citizen on his homecoming and that he will go to Cheyenne in August and presumably will greet certain tribes and swarms of delighted citizens on the way and back. This much will come of the suggestion of a western editor that the colonel return by way of San Francisco and tear up the vocal apparatus of the country on his way east. That he could not do so because it would bring him home late for his son's wedding. But he yielded to the suggestion to the extent of taking a later round trip to Cheyenne. Beyond these meager details it is given out that he will lecture, write books and help to edit the Outlook. What else the future holds for him and for the American people and Theodore Roosevelt himself alone can tell.

Certain it is that he will have plenty to do after he informs himself of what has taken place during his fifteen months' absence, and whatever he does it will keep the country on the jump. It is impossible that his personal energies should be bottled. They will find an outlet, and a political outlet at that. Of late the advice have linked his name with an ambitious tour of twenty-four states, with an address at one big mass meeting in each. This tour is to be made in connection with the Cheyenne trip, and the fortunate commonwealths included are as follows:

New York, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana, Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey.

Walter Wellman, who has been with him on the European tour, intimates that if the country demands it Roosevelt will again run for president. By the way, Wellman in one of his letters has a touch that is too good to be lost. It recounts how a young Englishman came down to the wharf in Egypt to see the former president. He gazed long and earnestly at that picture of health. Then he turned and said:

And just to think that man is now returning from a year on the equator! They tell me he has been out day after day eight, ten, twelve hours in the scorching sun. He has waded marshes up to his neck. He has fought his way through papirus and reeds and oases and mud. He has never had a day of fever or met a touch of dysentery. Look at him and look at me, as I have been down here 70 miles from the equator only one year.

I have tried to take care of myself. I have been in no swamps, done no hunting, save of mosquitoes. I am a wreck—have had fever, have had dysentery, have taken barrels of medicine, have been in hospitals and am now going home. I am a shadow of my former self. That is the way with most of those who come down into this country, which is no place for a white man. We go bad. We waste away. But look at this Mr. Roosevelt. Isn't he a wonder?

Here at home we who have known him all his life and who are of all shades of political opinion concerning him must echo that sentiment—Isn't he a wonder?

The Draw Bridge And Traffic.

A number of years ago had the draw bridge across the Wicomico river, on Main street, been thrown open for forty minutes, the occurrence would hardly have been noticeable. But now, with the growth of the city and the tremendous increase in traffic which this has caused, a blockade is the result every time the bridge is swung open. We are fully cognizant with the fact that it is necessary to open the draw to allow vessels to pass through. It is not because of this fact that we desire to register a complaint. It is because it frequently happens that the bridge is opened and held open unnecessarily that this article is published.

An example of this kind occurred Wednesday afternoon. At five minutes after two o'clock a vessel loaded with oyster shells gave the signal to open the bridge. The draw was immediately swung open and in less than five minutes a large gathering of pedestrians and a number of teams had been blocked on either side of the river. There was no apparent reason why the bridge should not have been closed in ten minutes from the time it was opened. Another vessel, however, which was lying at the wharf of the Salisbury Foundry & Machine Company, several hundred yards North of the bridge, and which was not even turned around, wanted to pass through the draw, and the bridge was actually kept open until this vessel was turned around and pushed down the river by the aid of poles, in the hands of the two men aboard. When this last vessel had finally passed through it was twenty minutes of three o'clock and the bridge had been kept open thirty-five minutes. By this time the teams were blocked on Main street from the steamboat wharf to the store of the Dorman & Smyth Hardware Company and there were outspoken protests from the drivers and the pedestrians who were anxious to pass through.

Several people who desired to leave this city on the gasoline steamer "James Denson", which is scheduled to leave on her return trip at half past two, happened to be on the other side of the river when the bridge was opened. They were there in plenty of time to make the boat but were delayed by the bridge being held open unnecessarily and they would have been unable to catch the boat in any event had not the captain lost considerable time by docking his craft on the opposite side of the river to take the passengers aboard. Some freight was also loaded on the West side of the river which could have reached the wharf of the "James Denson" with time to spare, had the bridge been closed after the first vessel had passed through.

Even after this last vessel had passed through and was a considerable distance down the river, the bridge was still kept open because it was believed by those in charge of the draw that a large schooner, laden with shells, which was only a few yards past the B. C. & A. wharf, wanted to pass through. It was later learned after a lapse of ten minutes, that such was not the case and the bridge was closed after having been kept open until ten minutes of three. In other words traffic was held at a standstill on the busiest street in the city for a period of forty-five minutes and for at least twenty minutes of this time the bridge might have been closed without delaying traffic on the river one second.

Before the present bridge was purchased by the county the excuse for these long delays was that a great deal of labor was necessary to open and close the bridge. That excuse was rendered useless when the new bridge was put in position as was evidenced on Wednesday when one man and three small boys opened and closed the draw with apparent ease. There is now no logically consistent excuse for these unreasonable delays.

An Antiquated System.

The alarm of fire which called the local department to the town of Laurel, Delaware, at an early hour last Sunday morning was but another demonstration of the antiquity of the method of sounding alarms which is now in vogue in this otherwise up-to-date and progressive city. After the message had been received from Laurel, where a damaging blaze was raging, the only means of calling the firemen together was brought into use and the bell in the court house tower was rung continuously for at least ten minutes. The result was that less than a dozen firemen heard the signal and responded to the call. It has been said time and time again that the bell in the court house was not loud enough to summon the firemen and if it cannot be heard in the deathlike stillness of the night better results cannot be expected during the noise and bustle of the day time. Disastrous fires have ruined thousands of dollars worth of property in this city in the past few years and a large share of the damage can be attributed to the inadequate system of calling the firemen. In many instances fires might have been held under control with slight damage to the property if the department had been summoned more quickly.

Some time ago it was given out that the city authorities had under consideration a plan to supplant the present method with a modern system but as nothing has been done in the matter it is evident that the proposition is still under consideration.

Will the Mayor and Council never learn that Salisbury is no longer a country village and that the humdrum placidity which once held sway is now a matter of history?

A summer cold if neglected is just as apt to develop into bronchitis or pneumonia as at any other season. Do not neglect it. Take Foley's Honey and Tar promptly. It loosens the cough, soothes and heals the inflamed air passages, and expels the cold from the system. Sold by John M. Toulson.

THE MARCH OF PROGRESS.

Some Topics in the Family Room of Highly Respectable People.

The wind tore wildly at the curtains and shrieked about the house, while the snow which had been falling for several days lay upon the ground in mountainous drifts. The mistress of the home looked toward the window every few minutes, and it was with a sigh of relief that she saw finally her husband's aeroplane making its way slowly toward home.

The two daughters sat poring over fashion books, and the tables and chairs were covered with frill and flimsy materials, delicate silks, lingers, chiffons and crapes.

"Let us get these things out of the way, my dear," said the mother, "for your father will think that we are arranging for a trip to the tropics."

"How absurd you are, mother," said the oldest girl. "Any one would know that we are merely deciding how to have our summer things made after the early fall fashions."

"I wish it would stop blowing," said the second girl. "I meant to go out to the bathhouse and get something for dinner."

"Never mind, dear," the mother said, smiling at the thoughtful girl. "We will fall back on the peaches. What flowers have you for the table, my child?" speaking to the oldest girl.

"Chrysanthemums," she replied, a note of triumph in her voice. "They are so springlike. The gardener showed me, too, how nicely the holly and mistletoe are coming on. They will be in full berry for our Fourth of July decorations."

"How the time goes!" sighed the mother. "It will soon be midsummer, and then we will sit on hotel porches and sew on undesired and undesirable Christmas gifts and go to fairs and bazaars and buy more of them—quantities and quantities of the hideous things."

"Here is father!" cried the oldest girl, endeavoring to divert her parent from this melancholy vision. "I am glad we have such a good dinner—veal and green corn and—"

"Very heavy sailing," said the father, appearing in the door. "But there are good reports. The weather bureau has put out bulletins promising the public that they will be able absolutely to regulate the weather conditions. Just as much rain as is needed will fall, no more. Nothing except a daisy now and then to make the June roses glow by contrast. It is the end, thank goodness, of those superannuated old seasons."

"Fancy," said the youngest daughter, "how slow and stupid it must have been—four seasons divided off like bones and appropriate flowers, fruits, vegetables and clothes for each!"

"And yet they were pleasant," said the mother, a reminiscent tear in her eye.

"Oh, mother, dear," cried the youngest generation in chorus, "do be careful! If you remember too much people will know that you are older than your daughters, and that is the greatest tragedy that can befall a modern mother."—Life.

An Experienced Waiter.

At the first meal on board the ocean liner Smythe was beginning to feel like casting his bread upon the waters. His friends had told him that when he began to feel that way he should stuff himself. He tackled a cutlet first, but it didn't taste right. He observed to the waiter, "Waiter, this cutlet isn't very good."

The waiter looked at his whitening face, then replied, "Yes, sir; but for the length of time you'll have it, sir, it won't matter, sir."—Lippincott's.

Parsonsborg.

Children's Day Services will be held at Jerusalem Methodist Episcopal Church, on Sunday, June 12, both morning and evening. A most excellent program has been arranged. A large chorus is rehearsing the music and a great time is anticipated. The church will be most profusely decorated. Those in charge of the program are doing all they can to make it the best ever rendered in this church. Don't fail to be present at both services.

The managers of Parsonsborg Camp, one of the largest camps on the Peninsula, have fixed the date of Aug. 5-15 for the encampment this year. Arrangements are being made to have many new faces among the ministers who will preach during the ten days. Also many of the able preachers who are well known on this old historical grounds. Indeed everything will be done that can be, to make this a great camp. A large chorus choir, numbering at least 50 voices, with a competent leader—along the Hall & Mack, great song book. Messrs. Hall and Mack have promised to be present as much of the time as they can during the encampment. These men are the greatest composers, publishers and leaders of large chorals in the city of Philadelphia. Be sure and be present to hear them sing. The preacher in charge, Rev. R. H. Collins, is planning to make every day a big one. So arrange your work, so you can remain on the ground all the time. Plans are being made to enlarge the encampment. So any one desiring to build a tent or rent please notify the Board of managers as soon as possible.

Special mention ought to be made of the great improvement made to our church cemetery. The grounds have all been cleared off and the tombs righted and walks fixed. Excellent is the comment passed by all.

Many thanks to every one who in any way helped to bring this about now let us pledge our support to help keep it in this good condition.

The 1st Quarterly conference will be held at Parsonsborg on Friday afternoon June 24 at 1:30 sharp.

Live Stock A Specialty.

The Board of Directors of the Wisconsin Fair Association purposes to make the live stock exhibit a special feature of the fair this year. To do this the premiums on live stock exhibits will be raised to double those offered last year.

Mr. Mark Cooper is Superintendent of this Division and he is now working getting up the premium list. Entries to this class will close August 9th, and are open to the world. It is the desire of the Superintendent that the farmers and stock raisers of the Eastern Shore shall participate extensively in these exhibits, and for the purpose of giving the farmers plenty of notice so they may get their stock in fine condition, the premium list will be gotten out early.

The farmers and stockraisers of Wisconsin ought to prepare for this class of exhibits. There is nothing which so helps a county as good stock. The premiums will be large enough to pay for the trouble of getting the stock in order and the people should get interested in this line.

The Story of "Hard Hit."

"Mr. Orchardson, if I thought that by killing you I could paint a picture like yours I would stab you to the heart." Such was the remark made by Pellegrini, the famous caricaturist, to the Royal academician, Sir William Orchardson, when at a private view he first saw "Hard Hit," the picture of the ruined gambler. "It was," said the artist, "the greatest compliment I could have had." Curiously enough, the model who sat for the ruined gambler was rather fond of cards himself. One day the artist noticed that he looked somewhat depressed. "What is the matter?" he asked. "I was awfully hard hit last night," he answered. "By Jove," replied the artist, jumping up with delight, "I've got it at last! 'Hard Hit,' of course. And that is how the picture got its name."

Six Follies of Science.

The six follies of science are the squaring of the circle, perpetual motion, the philosopher's stone, the elixir of life, magic and astrology.

In all ages men of undoubted ability have toiled early and late to unravel the mysteries supposed to be connected with these fascinating problems. It is not always remembered that such intellectual giants as Bacon, Sir Robert Boyle and Sir Isaac Newton sought the philosopher's stone. In the study of astrology Lilly was for a time even pensioned by parliament.

Most of these "follies" conferred indirect benefits upon science, for in seeking one thing their devotees discovered many another. The craze for the secret or unknown, has still its hold upon men and is seen in palmistry and kindred cults.

MAYOR BOUNDS' MESSAGE.

ing constructed in violation of the requirements of our City Ordinances, and also buildings are standing that are really a menace to the public. A rigid investigation and scrutiny on the part of a competent inspector would mean cheaper insurance, a better class of buildings, and more security from fire in our City. I would recommend the appointment of an inspector.

There is ample opportunity for an improvement in the enforcement of our City Ordinances, especially that relating to the speed of automobiles; obstructions to travel upon the street and sidewalks; and as to the sanitary condition of the City in keeping clean hog pens, cess-pools and other places of filth. With the co-operation of the Council I will demand that the Police see that these as well as other City Ordinances are strictly enforced.

I would also suggest the passage of an ordinance regulating the speed of trains in the corporate limits. The extension of lighting certain sections of our City is desirable, especially Main Street extended.

The contracts with all public service corporations should be fulfilled on the part of the said corporations. While I do not desire to impose any hardship on any of said corporations, they should be required to furnish that for which the City pays.

I would also call the Council's attention to the present condition of East Camden Street between Division and the Bridge, as to sidewalks and street bed. Cement sidewalks should be required, and street bed should be improved, as this is a much-used street.

It may be unnecessary to call the attention of your Honorable Body to the obligations the City owes our Fire Department. It should receive your heartiest support and co-operation. It being voluntary and without compensation to those who give their services in the protection of property from fire should at least receive the moral support, appreciation and well wishes of the City and its citizens. There seems to be a lack of public spirit along this line. I have recently noticed that adjoining towns, and its citizens, have entered into the matter of assisting their fire departments in a way that is commendable, by personal service and donation.

ions to help pay their Fire Company way to State meetings. A little fun is desired by all who work, and realizing this trait of character there should be a general co-operation on the part of our citizens in helping our firemen when called upon. This is a laudable purpose, and should not be passed upon lightly. Less criticism and more co-operation should be our citizens aim.

Because of the natural increase in population and improved area of our City, it appears to me that an extra policeman is much needed in our City and I would suggest the appointment of an extra policeman; and while this authority is vested in the Mayor, I desire to have the approval of the Council in this respect, and if Council deems it advisable, I will appoint same.

As we enter upon the duties of the year, I trust that you will give me your hearty co-operation, and I assure you of my best efforts in assisting you in working for the advancement and progress of our City and the general welfare of its citizens.

Respectfully submitted,
WILLIAM F. L. BOUNDS,
Mayor of Salisbury, Md.

JUNE ON THE GREAT LAKES.

Restful, delightful, interesting, and instructive, there is no trip like that on the Great Lakes, those inland seas which form the border line between the United States and Canada. And June is one of the most charming months in the year in which to take the trip.

For comfort the fine passenger steamships of the Anchor Line have no superiors. As well-appointed as the palatial ocean grey-hounds which plow the Atlantic, their schedule allows sufficient time at all stopping places to enable the traveler to see something of the great lake cities and to view in daylight the most distinctive sights of the lakes, and the scenery which frames them.

The trip through the Detroit River, and through Lake St. Clair, with its great ship canal in the middle of the lake, thence through Lake Huron, the locking of the steamer through the great locks at the Soo, and the passage of the Portage Entry, lake and canal, across the upper end of Michigan are novel and interesting features.

The voyage from Buffalo to Duluth covers over eleven hundred miles in the five days' journey. Leaving Buffalo, the steamships Juniata, Tionesta and Octorara, make stops at Erie, Cleveland, Detroit, Mackinac Island, the Soo, Marquette, Houghton and Hancock, and Duluth.

The 1910 season opened on May 31, when the Steamer Tionesta made her first sailing from Buffalo.

The Anchor Line is the Great Lake Annex of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and the service measures up to the high standard set by the "Standard Railroad of America."

An illustrated folder, giving sailing dates of steamers, rates of fare, and other information is in course of preparation, and may be obtained when ready from any Pennsylvania Railroad Ticket Agent, who is also prepared to book passengers who may desire to take this trip through the Great Lakes and back.

GLORIOUS CELEBRATION

FOR FOURTH OF JULY.

Fair Grounds Will Be The Scene Of Exciting Events—Horse Racing And Balloon Ascensions, And Other Features.

That Salisbury is to have an old time Fourth of July celebration this year is now an assured fact and it is because of the efforts of the Directors of the Wicomico Fair Association that the splendid program has been arranged. Nothing has been left undone that tends to swell the crowd. The railroad and other transportation companies have promised to make special rates and it is expected that the crowd will exceed 5,000 people.

The program for the day's events follows:

In the morning there will be an automobile parade through the streets of Salisbury. With nearly sixty cars in line, and all decorated, this will indeed be a pretty sight. In the afternoon there will be four horse races at the Fair Grounds. The first race will be a 2.40 trot; the second a 2.40 pace and the third a 2.18 pace. All three of these races will be for purses of $250.00, divided into four moneys.

The feature of the day's racing, however, will be what has been termed "The Ira Smith Farmer's Race." All horses entered in this race must be owned by residents of Wicomico county thirty days previous to the day of the race and they must be entered in the owner's name. Horses must be eligible to three minute class trot or pace and must be driven by a farmer. Hopples are barred in this race.

Mr. Smith, the harness dealer, who originated this feature, offers three prizes as follows: First, $24.00 suit of harness; Second, $15.00 suit of harness; Third, $5.00 pair of quarter boots.

There will be balloon ascensions with two three drop parachute acts—one in the afternoon and one at night with fire works. There will be vaudeville performances after-noon and evening and the best fire works ever seen on the Peninsula will be set off at eight o'clock at night. All of these things may be seen for one admission of twenty-five cents.

Another feature of the day's celebration will be the throwing of valuable coupons from the balloons.

There will be two kinds of coupons scattered from the balloons. One kind has been issued by the merchants of Salisbury and will be redeemable for their face value in merchandise at the store of the merchant whose name they bear. The other coupons have been issued by the Wicomico Fair Association and will be redeemable in cash, for their face value at the office of the Association.

Taken as a whole no better program for a Fourth of July celebration could have been arranged and as it is the first time in years that anything of the kind has been done here, there is no doubt that the venture will be a success.

Corner Stone Laid.

The congregation of the Wicomico Presbyterian Church of this city laid the corner stone of their enlarged church building amid very impressive services at 4 o'clock, Thursday afternoon.

A double significance was given to the service as the original corner stone of the present building was relaid, its future resting place being on the side of the church at the point where the old wall ends.

The new Corner Stone was laid at the water shed of the base of the future tower. It is a beautiful piece of White Vermont marble 24 inches by 18 inches. The lettering was done by J. T. Ellis & Son and is as follows: "Wicomico Presbyterian Church organized 1683-1690; erected 1859, rebuilt 1910."

All of the articles taken from the old stone were replaced in it in a new copper box. In the new stone in a copper box were placed a Bible, an Hymnal, a copy of the Confession of Faith of the Presbyterian Church, a copy of the Minutes of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, a copy of the Minutes of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church for the year 1909, a copy of the Manual of the Wicomico Presbyterian church for the last year, and a coin.

These articles were placed in the boxes at the L. W. Gunby Co.'s store in the presence of Rev. Wilson T. M. Beale, L. W. Gunby, clerk of the session, C. R. Disharoon, chairman of Building Committee. Both boxes were then hermetically sealed. The services were in charge of the pastor, Rev. Wilson T. M. Beale, assisted by the pastor emeritus, Rev. Samuel W. Reigart, D. D., and consisted of several appropriate hymns, the reading of the scriptures, a short address by the pastor and a prayer at the laying of each stone. Dr. Reigart offering the prayer at the laying of the old stone and Rev. Beale at the laying of the new.

THREE MASTED RAM GOES TO THE BOTTOM.

The J. Dallas Marvel, Captain Banks, Cut In Two Off Sandy Point By Steam Collier—Crew Saved But Vessel Was Lost.

The schooner J. Dallas Marvel, of Salisbury, was sunk about 3.50 o'clock Wednesday morning in 65 feet of water off Sandy Point by the steam collier Everett, of Boston.

Capt. C. C. Banks, Mate Isaac Banks and all his clothing, except what he wore, when the big bow of the Everett struck the Marvel on the starboard side, just forward of the mizzen rigging. All hands were driven to seek safety.

It was while considering their own lives that Captain Banks thought of Haman, who was asleep in the forward house. Fortunately Haman was half way out of the door with the waters combing him when dragged on deck. The boat was made for and Captain Banks and his three men left the Marvel going down. They pulled to the Everett, whose master, the crew of the schooner said, had not lowered a boat, but threw lines over the side to be sought for.

With their boat the schooner's crew were taken on board and landed at Curtis Bay coal piers about 7 o'clock.

The statement of Mate Banks, of the Marvel, is that the vessel left Baltimore Monday afternoon with 11,000 bushels of oyster shells shipped by C. C. Paul & Co., for Salisbury. Light head winds were met with, and at the time of being run down the schooner was heading across the bay on a tack from Sandy Point light toward the Eastern Shore. She was hardly making starboard way, when the lights of the steamer were seen, as was the light on Sandy Point, although it was slightly hazy.

Captain Banks, Mate Banks and Seaman Dixon were on deck. They said the steamer did not slow down in time to avert the collision, and that when she struck the schooner it was with terrible impact. It was but a few minutes before the schooner reeled and sank.

The J. Dallas Marvel belongs to a number of men, of Salisbury, and was built at Bethel, Del., in 1889. She has the record of being the first schooner of the "bald-headed" type built on the Chesapeake. She is 112 feet 8 inches long and 23 feet 6 inches beam and registers 160 tons.

HAGERSTOWN—A MODEL.

Success In Solving Lighting Problem A Lesson To Baltimore.

REMARKABLE LOW RATES TO ALL.

Tends To Encourage Small Manufacturers And To Make Cost Of Living Less.

(From the Baltimore Sun)

Might Be Even Lower Here.

Cost of producing electric current in Hagerstown is 1 1/2 cents a kilowatt hour.

This cost, under similar conditions, might be reduced in this city on account of the enormous quantity used, thereby making better contracts possible.

To general consumers a system of liberal discounts tends to enable housewives to escape much annoyance and drudgery by being able to use improved electric devices at small cost.

Small consumer reaps benefits as well as the large.

Street arc lights in Hagerstown cost city $50 a year each. Baltimore pays $67.49.

At the Hagerstown rate Baltimore would save nearly $49,000 a year on arc lights.

Announcement in The Sun yesterday that Hagerstown's municipal plant is producing electricity at a cost of 1 1/2 cents per kilowatt hour, and is selling the current to small manufacturers at this cost price, aroused considerable interest in Baltimore.

In years gone by Hagerstown was not a little vexed by lighting problems and heavy charges. At one time as much as 18 cents a kilowatt hour was paid by consumers. It was largely due to Mr. William Updegraff, one of the leading merchants, that relief was sought in the construction of a municipal plant.

Mr. Updegraff concluded, about a dozen years ago, to light his large glove factory, outside of town, with electricity and to manufacture the current himself. He installed the necessary equipment and was highly pleased with the results. Whenever he heard of the residents complaining about the lighting problem, then a vexing one and apparently nowhere near solution, he would invite them to visit his plant. During these visits the idea of a municipal plant had birth, and soon the plant came into actual being.

Disappointment At First. At first the experiment brought only vexation and disappointment. Politics badly intruded to lay the usual blighting hand upon successful operation. The original management, it seems, could not shake off this incubus; rates were not satisfactory, nor was the service, and expenses were heavy. After several years, during which no material advance was made and the town had become pretty well disgusted with its investment, Mr. J. Oscar Beard, the present manager, who was then City Clerk, took hold.

Mr. Beard made one stipulation; namely, that he was to be permitted to manage the concern for the best interests of the city as a whole and that politicians were to be kept away from its affairs with a gun, if necessary.

They were kept away and the enterprise began to prosper. This is shown by the statement of annual receipts from the service, which, six years ago, amounted to $10,804.31, and last year, to $35,942.61.

Superintendent Beard's conclusions as to the cost of producing electricity and his experience in furnishing power at low rates to small manufacturers, are more to the point than a history of the plant, successful as it has been.

Coal Bill Heaviest Item.

"In the cost of producing commercial electricity at a plant like ours," he said, "the coal bill, of course, is the heaviest item, with labor a close second. For instance, in our total operating expenses last year of $55,947.86, the sum of $10,652.85 went for coal and $7,181.22 for labor. Of course, we have no high-priced officials to swell our salary list."

"We use a high grade coal and pay $3 a ton for it, requiring between 3,000 and 3,500 tons a year. I do not see why coal cannot be had as cheaply in Baltimore. Of course, it is a longer haul from the mines to Baltimore, but the quantity demanded there is greater, making better inducements for large contracts."

"We find the cost of manufacturing electricity and delivering it to the consumer to be about 1 1/2 cents per kilowatt hour. If we had the advantage of water-power at our plant and could use that instead of steam, the cost of production would be much less. It could be reduced somewhat, anyway, by the installation of the best turbine machinery."

"We have added recently a new 750 kilowatt turbine outfit at a cost of $23,000, and a new condenser, but the two original units comprising the remainder of the plant are old reciprocating engines of 175 kilowatts each. So you see that with a plant only up-to-date in part, we can produce power at a cost of 1 1/2 cents. I have seen it stated that the cost in Baltimore is claimed to be something like 4.7 cents, but I cannot understand how that can be."

"Our fixed charges must be met, as at any other plant; we pay interest on our investment and are retiring the original bond issue; we must meet running expenses and take care of plant depreciation. But our poles, cross-arms, etc., are charged to expense and are not carried as an asset, as in most places. We consider our plant a great success and would not return to the old order of things."

Aim To Encourage Manufacturers.

"We are exceedingly anxious," continued Mr. Beard, "to encourage the small manufacturer and to secure a large number of such enterprises for our town. To such customers, as I have stated, we have been giving a rate of 1 1/2 cents a kilowatt hour, or the cost of production and delivery. I made a contract at this rate a few hours ago with a man who intends to operate a three horsepower motor in making the wood parts for a patent lead pencil."

"Then, too, from our regular residence rates we allow a special 50 per cent. discount for current used to operate laundry and household machinery. Most of the people of Hagerstown have their laundry work done at home and the electric iron is coming into general use. Electricity is being used to a greater extent each year to operate washing machines, sewing machines and even to toast bread at the breakfast table by means of the electric toaster."

"For all such employment the special 50 per cent. discount is allowed because we wish to encourage a more general use of electrical energy in the household. The servant question has reached such a stage that any mechanical aid to the housewife is appreciated, and we wish to have Hagerstown regarded far and wide as a model place in which to live."

"Now to return for a moment to the small manufacturer—I harp on him because I thoroughly believed in him. These consumers take their power, as a rule, during the day hours, when there is the least demand upon our service. The problem of every producer of electrical energy is to increase the demand during the daylight hours so that it will approach nearer the 'peak' demand that must be met by the plant during the rush hours. It seems to me that this can be done by making an attractive rate to power users—the little fellows especially—so that there will be a general turning to electrical energy."

Summarized, the Hagerstown electrical situation is this: Power for certain purposes is supplied at 1 1/2 cents per kilowatt hour. To the general consumer there is a rate of 12 1/2 cents, but when the bill is more than 50 cents a month, the consumer begins to get the benefit of a system of liberal discounts. These discounts being at 25 per cent. or bills between 50 cents and $2 in amount, and increase until they reach 50 per cent. on large bills. The heavy consumer may get his service as low as 5 cents, while even the small user finds an attractive discount when he pays his bill.

Street arc lights cost the city about $50 a year each. Baltimore pays $67.49. At the Hagerstown rate Baltimore would save nearly $49,000 a year on arc lights and could afford to have many more of them. The people of Hagerstown are satisfied with their investment and regard their plant with not a little pride. Such is Hagerstown's experience with electricity. That of Baltimore is different.

THE Salisbury Building & Loan and Banking Association
This Association has two separate and distinct departments: "The Building & Loan Department" and "The Banking Department."
The Building & Loan Department, with its paid-up capital stock of $134,500.00, makes loans secured by mortgages, to be paid back in weekly installments of 30c, 40c, 50c, $1.00 or $2.00 per week, to suit borrower, and has been doing a popular and successful business since 1887.
The Banking Department was added in 1902 under authority granted by the General Assembly of Maryland of that year, to set apart $25,000.00 of the Association's capital stock for banking purposes. It receives money on deposits, makes loans on commercial paper, enters into such business transactions as conservative banks ordinarily do, and earnestly solicits the patronage of its friends and the general public. ROOSEVELT ON SENTIMENTALITY

Insists He Used Right Word in Egyptian Situation Speech.
Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who recently honored with the degree of LL. D. by Cambridge University in England, has written a letter in reply to a correspondent who requested him to substitute the word "sentimentality" for "sentimentality," which he used in his address at the Guildhall in London the other day when the freedom of the city was conferred upon him.
Mr. Roosevelt in his speech was analyzing British rule in Egypt. He said, he declared, had given Egypt the best government the country had had in 2,000 years, but in certain vital points it had erred. "Those who have to do with uncivilized peoples, especially the native peoples," he said, "must remember that in such a situation as that which faces you in Egypt weakness, timidity and sentimentality may cause infinitely more harm than violence and note by American Press Association.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.
(When he was made an LL. D. by Cambridge University.)
Injustice. Sentimentality is the most broken reed on which righteousness can lean.
To the objector of the use of the word "sentimentality," Mr. Roosevelt wrote:
"Dear Sir—I regard sentiment as the exact antithesis of sentimentality. To substitute sentiment for sentimentality in my speech would directly invert my meaning. I abhor sentimentality and, on the other hand, think no man so worth his salt who is not profoundly influenced by sentiment and who doesn't shape his life in accordance with a high ideal. Faithfully yours,
THEODORE ROOSEVELT.
While on his way to Pembroke college, where Mr. Roosevelt's degree of LL. D. was conferred on him, the Cambridge undergraduates not only cheered him, but some of the frolicsome students put a tiny Teddy bear in the path they knew the ex-president would take. Mr. Roosevelt was greatly amused at the joke.
Colonel Roosevelt has also had the degree of LL. D. conferred upon him by the following American educational institutions: Columbia University in 1890, Hope College in 1901, Yale in 1901, Harvard in 1902, Northwestern University in 1903, University of Pennsylvania in 1905 and Clark University in 1906.

BOMBS FROM AEROPLANE.
United States Government to Test Aircraft's Value as Engines of War.
Whether the aeroplane has reached such a state of perfection as to be used as an instrument of warfare is to be determined by the United States government in a series of experiments to be made at Chickamauga park, near Chattanooga, Tenn., at the military tournament to be held by troops of the United States army and national guardsmen from several states from June 20 to 24, inclusive.
This announcement was made recently by Charles K. Hamilton, the aviator, who said that he had been engaged to conduct the aerial experiments for the war department. Mr. Hamilton will use a Curtiss machine and will drop 300 pounds of nitroglycerin projectiles from his biplane while going at fifty-five miles an hour and while a quarter of a mile in the air.
The dirigible balloon sold to the government by Captain Thomas S. Baldwin will also be used in the experiments. The tests are for the purpose of determining if fortifications can be destroyed by dropping bombs from the aeroplane while floating at such a distance over a fort as to be out of reach of the big guns.
Dummy fortifications will be arranged, and, according to the plans called to have been agreed upon by the war department officials, Mr. Hamilton, while flying at the speed at which an express train goes, will drop the deadly cargo in an effort to destroy the fortifications. He is confident that the experiments will prove the value of the aeroplane as an engine of war.

King Edward's funeral, with its attendant expenses, cost $1,500,000, which expense will be defrayed from the public purse.

SATURDAY, JUNE 18, 1910.

Will Be a Sane Fourth.

A program such as has been arranged by the directors of the Wicomico Fair Association, to celebrate the most important holiday observed in the United States, could hardly be improved. The celebration, as it is now planned (the program is published on page one of this issue) is based upon the principle of a sane Fourth of July. Ordinarily, at least for a number of years, there has been no special arrangement for a celebration and the result has been the indiscriminate setting off of dangerous explosives by inexperienced persons. This year it promises to be different. The entire program has been arranged with the idea of furnishing good, cheap amusement at all hours during the day. By giving the thousands of people who will visit Salisbury on that day some form of amusement, the Directors of the Fair Association have solved the perplexing problem of a sane Fourth of July. By furnishing entertainment for the people, the people will have no desire to entertain themselves and in this way a great danger, which always is connected with the shooting off of fire works, is removed.

Abundant entertainment has been provided and the Fair Association is to be congratulated upon the undertaking.

Miss Christine Richards Married.

The following account of the wedding of Miss Christine Richards, formerly supervisor of music in the public schools here is taken from the Bristol Courier:

One of the local June weddings took place at 7:30 this evening when Christine Antoinette Richards, youngest daughter of Mrs. William C. Richards, a member of one of Bristol's oldest families, and Reese Harvey Harris, son of President Harris of Bucknell university, were married. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Charles Terry Treadway of Bellevue avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris left town late Monday evening on a wedding trip and will reside in Scranton, Pa., where Mr. Harris is a practicing lawyer.

Mrs. Harris is the youngest daughter of the late Dr. William C. Richards, who was for many years one of the best known men in Bristol. She graduated from the Bristol High school in the class of 1904 and afterwards studied music at the Mansfield Conservatory. Later she was supervisor of music in the schools of Salisbury, Md., and was very successful in her work.

Mr. Harris was graduated from Bucknell university and later from the law school of Harvard university. He is associated with the law firm of Warren, Knapp & O'Malley, a prominent legal firm of Scranton, Pa.

In Memoriam.

In sad but loving remembrance of my father, Urie J. Hastings, who died two years ago this 20th day of June, 1910.

Two years has passed, dear father. Since we were forced to part; But time nor space can ne'er erase Your memory from my heart.

Farewell, dear father, but not forever. For there will be a glorious dawn; We shall meet to part no more, On that resurrection morn.

By his little daughter,
Pauline.

GREAT FLYING
BY HAMILTON.

Startling Exploits of the Aviator
on Hempstead Plains

MOST SPECTACULAR FLIGHTS

Made His Aeroplane Wheel and Dip
Like a Swallow—Daring Dive Past
Another Machine in Flight—How He Played Tricks With a Horse, a Dog and a Man.

Charles K. Hamilton, the aviator, with his aeroplane did almost everything except turn somersaults in the air over the aviation field at Hempstead Plains, near Mineola, N. Y., late the other afternoon. For about forty minutes this lightweight aviator, who tips the scales at 110 pounds, performed capers that caused women to wave their handkerchiefs and men to take off their hats.

While Hamilton was the star of the occasion, both Captain Thomas S. Baldwin and Joseph Seymour made flights. At times the three machines were doing stunts over different parts of the course, and the counter attractions proved almost as diverting as a three ring circus. Seymour was the first to start. At 5 o'clock with his yellow flier he made two good circles of the track. It was 5:40 before the Hamilton machine was properly tuned up and ready for the air. Hamilton pulled off his flying toggery, mounted the seat and posed for a photograph. Then he braced his feet and took a short run and was off for a joy ride. The trim little racer darted to an altitude of fifty or sixty feet and then gradually arose higher and higher until the altitude was estimated at more than 500 feet. Hamilton swung his machine around the course with the grace of a swallow and passed over the aerodrome, making a dive of about 200 feet and causing the crowd to scatter in fear. He suddenly made an upward sweep to an altitude of several hundred feet and turned in the direction of Garden City. He wheeled his machine and flew to the center of the field and executed a spectacular glide to the ground.

Scared High in the Air.

Both Mrs. H. M. Bendette, mother of Mr. Hamilton, and the aviator's wife saw his exhibitions in an aeroplane.

The fuel tank was refilled, and Hamilton prepared for another flight. "Now he is going to do something big," said Mrs. Hamilton, with pride, as he resumed his seat in the machine, and, sure enough, he did. He flew to a height estimated at from 800 to 1,000 feet and made dives to within fifteen or twenty feet of the ground. This time he remained aloft 23 minutes and 6 seconds, covering a distance of twenty-five miles. He circled over the Nassau courthouse, then turned in the direction of Garden City and flew over a church spire and then paid his respects to Mendowbrook. He disappeared from view and attempted a flight across the sound, but presently in the distance a speck was visible against the sky, and it grew larger and larger as the machine winged its way back to the flying field. A wild cheer broke from the crowd as the mechanical bird soared overhead.

Then Hamilton proceeded to give an exhibition of fancy flying. He made circle after circle of the course, varying his altitude from 800 to 15 feet. Once he flew so low as to put a dog to flight, and again he made a dip over the Baldwin aeroplane, which was in flight, that caused the spectators to hold their breath. In making one of his fantastic dives over a group of persons who were watching his maneuvers the machine tilted in a fashion that caused some lively scurrying. Edgerton Winthrop, who was on horseback, didn't waste any time getting out of the way.

Hamilton caught his balance and began playing hide and seek, over the buildings and telegraph wires. He ended his aerial whirl with a glide of 200 or 300 feet, and the machine settled on its three wheels with the grace of a bird alighting on its feet.

Played Antics With a Horse.

The day before Hamilton also made some startling flights. He saw a horse in a neighboring field, and a spirit of mischief seized him. He swooped down toward the horse as an eagle would make for a victim. The horse cavorted, snorted and tried to run. Hamilton came within almost kicking distance of the animal, then veered upward, made a circle in the air and again made for the horse. He played with the horse as a cat would with a mouse. Then he shot toward the plains again, and a man who was watching, wide-eyed and open mouthed, attracted him. He bore his machine down on the man at a fifty mile pace. The man ducked; then he ran. Hamilton played tag with him until the man stood still. With a laugh Hamilton rose toward the clouds.

Once he rose to a height of 600 feet. His machine suddenly tipped almost straight, pointed to the earth and with its propeller's force added to the natural speed of gravity shot downward. The spectators held their breath. They expected to see Hamilton and his aeroplane crushed. Fifty feet from the ground the dier changed his course, and the machine halted, turned and moved slowly away on a perfect keel.

Roosevelt Lectures on Biological Analogies.

GUEST OF OXFORD UNIVERSITY

Growth and Decay of Civilization. The Birth Rate Question—Calls England Greatest Empire and Declares the Man Who Tries in One Worth While.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt delivered the following lecture on "Biological Analogies in History" at Oxford university.

An American who, in response to such an invitation as I have received, speaks in this university of ancient renown cannot but feel with peculiar vividness the interest and charm of his surroundings, fraught as they are with a thousand associations. Your great universities and all the memories that make them great are living realities in the minds of scores of thousands of men who have never seen them and who dwell across the seas in other lands.

Moreover, these associations are no stranger in the men of English stock than in those who are not. My people have been for eight generations in America, but in one thing I am like the Americans of tomorrow rather than like many of the Americans of today, for I have in my veins the blood of men who came from many different European races. The ethnic makeup of our people is slowly changing, so that constantly the race tends to become more and more akin to that of those Americans who, like myself, are of the old stock, but not mainly of English stock.

Yet I think that as time goes by mutual respect, understanding and sympathy among the English speaking peoples grow greater and not less. Any of my ancestors, Hollander or Huguenot, Scotchman or Irishman, who had come to Oxford in "the spacious days of great Elizabeth" would have felt far more alien than I, their descendant, now feel.

Paleontology History. When dealing with the changes, cataclysmic or otherwise, which divide one period of paleontological history from another we can sometimes assign causes and again we cannot even guess at them. In the case of single species or of faunas of very restricted localities the explanation is often self evident.

A comparatively slight change in the amount of moisture in the climate, with the attendant change in vegetation, might readily mean the destruction of a group of huge herbivores with a bodily size such that they needed a vast quantity of food and with teeth so weak or so peculiar that but one or two kinds of plants could furnish this food.

Again, we now know that the most deadly foes of the higher forms of life are various lower forms of life, such as insects or microscopic creatures introduced into the blood by insects.

where many large animals, wild and domestic, cannot live because of the presence either of certain ticks or of certain painful flies.

In Africa there is a terrible genus of poison fly, each species acting as the host of microscopic creatures which are deadly to certain of the higher vertebrates. One of these species, though harmless to man, is fatal to all domestic animals, and this although harmless to the closely related wild kinfolk of these animals.

Another is fatal to man himself, being the cause of the "sleeping sickness," which in many large districts has killed out the entire population. Of course the development or the extension of the range of any such insects and any one of many other causes which we see actually at work around us would readily account for the destruction of some given species or even for the destruction of several species in a limited area of country.

When whole faunal groups die out over large areas the question is different and may or may not be susceptible of explanation with the knowledge we actually possess.

In the old arctic continent, for instance, in what is now Europe, Asia and North America, the glacial period made a complete but, of course, explicable change in the faunal life of the region. At one time the continent held a rich and varied fauna. Then a period of great cold supervened, and a different fauna succeeded the first. The explanation of the change is obvious.

"Death" of Civilization. When we speak of the "death" of a tribe, a nation or a civilization the term may be used for either one or two totally different processes, the analogy with what occurs in biological history being complete. Certain tribes of savages—the Tasmanians, for instance, and various little clans of American Indians have within the last century or two completely died out. All of the individuals have perished, leaving no descendants, and the blood has disappeared.

Certain other tribes of Indians have as tribes disappeared or are now disappearing, but their blood remains, being absorbed into the veins of the white intruders or of the black men introduced by these white intruders, so that in reality they are merely being transformed into something altogether different from what they were.

In the United States, in the few states of Oklahoma, the Cheyenne, Cherokee, Chickasaw, Delaware and other tribes are in process of absorption into the mass of the white population. When the state was admitted, a couple of years ago, one of the two senators and three of the five representatives in congress were partly of Indian blood.

In but a few years these Indian tribes will have disappeared as completely as those that have actually died out, but the disappearance will be by absorption and transformation into the mass of the American population.

Growth and Decay.

Why do great artificial empires, whose citizens are knit by a bond of speech and culture much more than by a bond of blood, show periods of extraordinary growth and again of sudden or lingering decay? In some cases we can answer readily enough; in other cases we cannot as yet even guess what the proper answer should be. If in any such case the centrifugal forces overcome the centripetal, the nation will, of course, fly to pieces, and the reason for its failure to become a dominant force is patent to every one.

The minute that the spirit which binds its healthy development in local and national government and is the antidote to the dangers of an extreme centralization develops into mere particularism, into inability to combine effectively for achievement of a common end, then it is hopeless to expect great results.

We Americans and you people of the British Isles alike need ever to keep in mind that among the many qualities indispensable to the success of a great democracy and second only to a high and stern sense of duty, of moral obligation are self knowledge and self mastery.

You, my hosts, and I may not agree in all our views. Some of you would think me a very radical democrat, as for the matter of that, I am, and my theory of imperialism would probably suit the anti-imperialists as little as it would suit a certain type of feeble feeble imperialist. But there are some points on which we must all agree if we think soundly. The precise form of government, democratic or otherwise, is the instrument, the tool, with which we work. It is important to have a good tool, but even if it is the best possible it is only a tool. No implement can ever take the place of the guiding intelligence that wields it.

A very bad tool will ruin the work of the best craftsman, but a good tool in bad hands is no better. In the last analysis the all important factor in national greatness is national character.

The Birth Rate Question.

There are questions which we of the great civilized nations are ever tempted to ask of the future. Is our time of growth drawing to an end? Are we as nations soon to come under the rule of that great law of death which is itself but part of the great law of life? None can tell. Forces that we can see and other forces that are hidden or that can but dimly be apprehended are at work all around us, both for good and for evil. The growth in luxury, in love of ease, in taste for rapid and frivolous excitement, is both evident and unhealthy.

The most ominous sign is the diminution in the birth rate, in the rate of natural increase, now to a larger or lesser degree shared by most of the civilized nations of central and western Europe, of America and Australia, a diminution so great that if it continues for the next century at the rate which has obtained for the last twenty-five years all the more highly civilized peoples will be stationary or else have begun to go backward in population, while many of them will have already gone very far backward.

There is much that should give us concern for the future, but there is much also that should give us hope. No man is more apt to be mistaken than the prophet of evil.

I believe with all my heart that a great future remains for us. But whether it does or does not our duty is not altered. However the battle may go, the soldier worthy of the name will with utmost vigor do his allotted task and bear himself as valiantly in defeat as in victory.

Come what will, we belong to peoples who have not yielded to the craven fear of being great. In the ages that have gone by the great nations, the nations that have expanded and that have played a mighty part in the world, have in the end grown old and weakened and vanished, but so have the nations whose only thought was to avoid all danger, all effort, who would risk nothing and who therefore gained nothing. In the end the same fate may overwhelm all alike, but the memory of the one type perishes with it, while the other leaves its mark deep on the history of all the future of mankind.

Nations Born Again.

born again, and even though in the physical sense it die utterly it may yet hand down a history of heroic achievement and for all time to come may profoundly influence the nations that arise in its place by the impress of what it has done.

Best of all is it to do our part well and at the same time to see our blood live young and vital in men and women fit to take up the task as we lay it down, for so shall our seed inherit the earth. But if this which is best is denied us, then at least it is ours to remember that if we choose we can be torchbearers, as our fathers were before us.

The torch has been handed on from nation to nation, from civilization to civilization, throughout all recorded time from the dim years before history dawned down to the blazing splendor of this twentieth century of ours.

While freely admitting all of our follies and weaknesses of today, it is yet more perversely to refuse to realize the incredible advances that have been made in ethical standards. I do not believe that there is the slightest necessary connection between any weakening of virtue force and the advance in the moral standard, this growth of the sense of obligation to one's neighbor and of reluctance to do that neighbor wrong.

We need have scant patience with that silly cynicism which insists that kindness of character only accompanies weakness of character. On the contrary, just as in private life many of the men of loftiest and most exalted morality so I believe that in national life as the ages go by we shall find that the permanent national types will more and more tend toward those in which, while the intellect stands high, character stands higher, in which rugged strength and courage, rugged capacity to resist wrongful aggression by others, will go hand in hand with a lofty scorn of doing wrong to others.

The Greatest Empire.

You belong to a nation which possesses the greatest empire upon which the sun has ever shone. I belong to a nation which is trying on a scale hitherto unexampled to work out the problems of government for, of and by the people, while at the same time doing the international duty of a great power.

But there are certain problems which both of us have to solve and as to which our standards should be the same. The Englishman, the man of the British Isles, in his various homes across the seas and the American both at home and abroad are brought into contact with utterly alien peoples, some with a civilization more ancient than our own, others still in or having but recently arisen from the barbarism which our people left behind ages ago.

The problems that arise are of well nigh inconceivable difficulty. They cannot be solved by the foolish sentimentality of stay at home people with little patent recipes and those cut and dried theories of the political nursery which have such limited applicability amid the crash of elemental forces.

Neither can they be solved by the raw brutality of the men who, whether at home or on the rough frontier of civilization, adopt might as the only standard of right in dealing with other men and treat alien races only as subjects for exploitation.

I hold that the laws of morality which should govern individuals in their dealings one with the other are just as binding concerning nations in their dealings one with the other. The application of the moral law must be different in the two cases, because in one case it has and in the other it has not the sanction of a civil law with force behind it. It would be foolish indeed to pay heed to the unwise persons who desire disarmament to be begun by the very peoples who of all others should not be left helpless before any possible foe. But we must reprobate quite as strongly both the leaders and the peoples who practice or encourage or condone aggression and iniquity by the strong at the expense of the weak.

We should tolerate lawlessness and wickedness neither by the weak nor by the strong, and both weak and strong we should in return treat with scrupulous fairness. The foreign policy of a great and self respecting country should be conducted on exactly the same plane of honor, of insistence upon one's own rights and of respect for the rights of others as when a brave and honorable man is dealing with his fellows.

Permit me to support this statement out of my own experience. For nearly eight years I was the head of a great nation and charged especially with the conduct of its foreign policy, and during those years I took no action with reference to any other people on the face of the earth that I would not have felt justified in taking as an individual in dealing with other individuals.

Try at Least.

I believe that we of the great civilized nations of today have a right to feel that long careers of achievement lie before our several countries. To each of us is vouchsafed this honorable privilege of doing his part, however small, in that work.

Let us strive hard for success, even if by so doing we risk failure, spurning the poorer souls of small endeavor who know neither failure nor success.

Let us hope that our own blood shall continue in the land that our children and children's children to endless generations shall arise to take our places and play a mighty and dominant part in the world. But whether this be denied or granted by the years we shall not see, let at least the satisfaction be ours that we have carried onward the lighted torch in our own day and generation. If we do this, then, as our eyes close and we go out into the darkness and other hands grasp the torch at least we can say that our part has been borne well and valiantly.

The Conservation Of Nature's Resources.

Applies as well to our physical state as to material things. C. J. Budlong, Washington, D. C., realized his condition, and took warning before it was too late. He says: "I suffered severely from kidney trouble, the disease being hereditary in our family. I have taken four bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy, and now consider myself thoroughly cured. This should be a warning to all not neglect taking Foley's Kidney Remedy until it is too late." Sold by John M. Toulson.

Scared Into Sound Health.

Mr. B. F. Kelley, Springfield, Ill., writes: "A year ago I began to be troubled with my kidneys and bladder, which grew worse until I became alarmed at my condition. I suffered also with dull heavy headaches and the action of my bladder was annoying and painful. I read of Foley's Kidney Pills and after taking them a few weeks the headaches left me, the action of my bladder was again normal, and I was free of all distress." For sale by John M. Toulson.

Why Boiled Water Freezes Easier.

Water which is hot of course cannot freeze until it has parted with its heat, but water that has been boiled will, other things being equal, freeze sooner than water which has not been boiled. A slight disturbance of water disposes it to freeze more rapidly, and this is the cause which accelerates the freezing of boiled water. The water that has been boiled has lost the air naturally contained in it, which on exposure to the atmosphere, it begins again to attract and absorb. During this process of absorption a motion is necessarily produced among its particles, slight certainly and imperceptible, yet probably sufficient to accelerate its congelation. In unboiled water this disturbance does not exist. Indeed, water when kept perfectly still can be reduced several degrees below the freezing point without its becoming ice.

Gardens In the Ice.

A glacier when it dislodges itself and sails away over the Arctic ocean never travels alone. In the wake of every large one floats a line of similar companions. The Eskimos call this phenomenon "the duck and ducklings," and any one who has watched the progress of the wild duck followed by her brood will appreciate the aptitude of the name. Strange as it may seem, plants grow and blossom upon these great ice mountains. When a glacier is at rest moss attaches itself to it, protecting the ice beneath, just as seaweeds do. After a time the moss decays and forms a soil, in which the seeds of buttercups and dandelions, brought by the wind, take root and flourish. Those who have traveled much in arctic lands say the poppy does not bloom during the brief northern summer.

A Bismarck Incident.

It used to be the privilege of Austria's representative at any conference of representatives of the German states to smoke the others refraining. This was supposed to be an acknowledgment of Austria's supremacy. At the first conference that Bismarck attended as Prussia's representative he began to puff smoke across the conference table as soon as the Austrian diplomat lit up. That set everybody present to smoking on equal terms, and Austria's supremacy got a blow.

A Timely Warning.

"Your dog seems a very intelligent animal," remarked an inexperienced sportsman to a gamekeeper. "Yes," was the ready response. "Wonderful intelligent 'e 'is! Yes, 'other day 'e bit a gent as only give me a 'arf sovereign after a day's shoot!"—London Scribe.

Her Dear Friend.

Susie—Now, when I'm asked to sing I never say, "Oh, I can't!" I always sit down at the piano—Jennie—And let the audience find it out for themselves!—Illustrated Bits.

What's in McClure's.

Roosevelt, the most talked of private citizen, and the German Emperor, the most talked of sovereign are the subjects of articles in the July McClure's. Both papers are by Sydney Brooks, a well known English political writer and both so good that the magazine is induced to break its rule of not printing two articles by the same author in one number. Mr. Brooks tells "What Europe Thinks of Roosevelt," and his paper, "The Real Kaiser," is said by those who should know to be the best articles ever written about the picturesque ruler. Elizabeth Shapley Verge and writes of the shocking conditions under which false hair, willow plumes, artificial flowers and other things sold in the great shops are manufactured in New York tenements. John Burroughs answers the exponents of the "new psychology" who declare that animal behavior is not governed by reason or instinct, and Senator Platt gives his side of the Garfield-Conkling feud. Jack London contributes "The Unparalleled Invasion" to an exceptionally strong fiction number. Other stories are "From One Generation to Another" by Arnold Bennett; "The Translation of Giovanna" by Amanda Mathews; "The Alumnus Dagger" by Austin Freeman; "The Poet Who Saved His Youth" by Helen S. Thomas and "Corazon" by George Pattullo.

MAUD MULLER.

THE judge was out in his new machine. A shiny, imported limousine. He looked his hunker in the shade of the apple tree to call the maid. And asked for water from the spring. To cool his motor sputtering. She stooped where the cool spring bubbled up. And filled twelve times a big tin cup. And blushed as she gave it, looking down at her shoes. All mud, and her spattered gown. "Blimey," said the judge and all that rot "Jove, but the beastly thing was hot!" He spoke of the clutch and power and gear. Of motor and start, while Maud gave ear. Then he talked of tires and wondered whether That patched hind tube would hold together. And Maud forgot her spattered gown. And spring drenched ankles, muddy brow. And listened, while a dazed surprise Looked from her—don't know color—eyes. At last, the one who for delay Seeks vain excuse, he chugged away. Maud Muller dodged and sighed: "Oh, yes. That's the judge's bride might be!" —Fick's Patent Whittier.

Her Wasted Effort.

She had been reading that a titled Englishwoman advises married women to flirt with their husbands. As she finished the article her husband came home to dinner. She ran to meet him.

"A little late tonight, duckydoose-ism," she said, with a dimpling smile. "What's that?" he growled.

She looked at him archly. "Don't you dare to kiss me," she tilted.

"Gee," he cried, "I don't intend to! What put that in your head?"

She half closed her eyes and coyly surveyed him through the drooping lashes.

"You don't want to sit here by me on the sofa?" she cooed.

"No, I don't. Why, you told me only yesterday that the springs were getting weak. Aren't you feeling well?"

She laughed softly and shot him a side glance and drew in her cheeks and flashed her white teeth and perceptibly winked.

He drew back suddenly.

"What's the matter with you?" he demanded. "Who are you imitating? Can't you make your face behave?"

She picked up the paper she had been reading and flung it into the decorated wastebasket.

"There's nothing the matter with me," she coldly replied.

"Just mugging for fun, eh? Glad of that. Stimson was telling me today about a lot of trouble his wife is having with her facial nerves, and I was afraid you'd caught it. Ain't that confounded dinner ready?" —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Not Encouraging.

"What's the matter, senator? You look as if you had heard bad news."

"Well, it isn't exactly what you would call cheerful news. I gave out an interview yesterday in which I said that I had decided to retire at the end of my present term."

"Yes?"

"I've just got a telegram from home saying my constituents held a grand ratification meeting last night." —Chicago Record-Herald.

The Easiest Way.

"Give me a chance, just one more chance!" pleaded the girl with a wistful entreaty, which should have melted the heart of a stone.

But the man, with set, pale face, merely shook his head and passed on.

So it is that men, even the best of them, are unwilling to give a woman the chance she begs for.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Study For To-morrow, "The Parable of the Sower." Ably Discussed By a Local Writer.

Mat. 3:1-9:13-23.

Golden Text:—Wherefore putting away all bitterness and overflowing of wickedness, receive with meekness the implanted word, which is able to save your souls.

We have been taking a rather chronological view of the Master's work in Galilee, and now turn back to consider what he taught during that part of his ministry. The parable of the sower seems so plain and simple to us. That is what Jesus desired it to be, a parable or narrative founded upon some real scene or event to aid in the application of some truth. At this time it was a very effective way of teaching, particularly in teaching religion. Books were scarce, and a teacher usually gave instructions orally, so it was desirable to make the scene of the subject matter plain, explicit, and impressive by using familiar scenes to explain and impress truth. This truth was frequently recalled by the recurrence of the events in the parable in the life of the hearer.

Reading the twelfth chapter of Matthew, we hear that this was a busy, important day. One of healing and cleansing with Jews from Jerusalem, also his mother and brethren had come seeking him, and he answered proclaiming his disciples as his kindred. Jesus left the house where he had been teaching, and going to the sea-shore entered a boat, and seating himself, taught the multitude that gathered to hear. It may be possible, that looking out over the sea of country before him, the Master saw the often familiar scene explains this condition. It is when the word of God is preached to those who do not understand, or do not take it in, do not receive it from either lack of understanding or intentional hardening of heart. Many things make our heart wholly unresponsive to Christian teaching. Men frequently permit worldly things to so shut them off from every thing nobler that they reap every bit of good that comes to them, and this means failure. "Born a man, died a grocer," is an epithet that is very expressive.

Some seed fell in stony places. Did you ever see a stony field where the ground is shallow or thin, and underlaid with rock? The earth is thin, but rich; the underlying rock holds the warmth of the sun, and in early spring the soil germinates the seeds promptly and they grow, but the dry, trying summer comes they cannot withstand, as there is no depth of rootage, so they die. They began with joy and grew, but the rough, stony places with drought waste too much for them, and they failed. Other seed fell among thorns, and the thorns sprang up and choked it. Is it possible that weeds grow faster than useful vegetables and fruits?

Very often, sometimes entirely destroying the seed or plant, other times rendering it unfruitful. And so the human heart, so prone to evil, is salted with rock for weeds and thorns, destroying the seed, choking it out, even if it has taken hold, and this makes it of no effect. Many things choke out the seed to-day, worldly ambition is the great destroyer of God's truth in men's hearts to-day.

Other seed fell upon good ground, and brought forth an abundant harvest. Many hearts are open to the truth, and permit it to dwell in them to the bringing forth of much good result. There seems to be degrees of good results, some a hundred fold, some sixty fold, and some thirty fold. How is the fruit measured? By the result in our own lives, and then by the good we do for others in offering the truth to them.

We, in turn, become sowers of seed. We sow the good seed of the Master farmer, also the seed of our own growth. We repeat to others the truth as we learn it from the fountain of truth, and then we teach it by example, as we live the truth out in our lives. We hear and hear, we grow and grow, we sow and sow, and also reap.

The seed is true, it is truth itself. Given a good soil and care the harvest is sure. How we hear it and receive it has much to do with the growth. And then, the soil? If we give it good honest mind and heart wherein to grow and mature, the harvest will be abundant.

JUNE ON THE GREAT LAKES.

Restful, delightful, interesting, and instructive, there is no trip like that on the Great Lakes; those inland seas which form the border line between the United States and Canada. And June is one of the most charming months in the year in which to take the trip.

For comfort the fine passenger steamships of the Anchor Line have no superiors. As well-appointed as the palatial ocean grey-hounds which plow the Atlantic, their schedule allows sufficient time at all stopping places to enable the traveler to see something of the great lake cities and to view in daylight the most distinctive sights of the lakes, and the scenery which frames them.

The trip through the Detroit River, and through Lake St. Clair, with its great ship canal in the middle of the lake, thence through Lake Huron, the locking of the steamer through the great locks at the Soo, and the passage of the Portage Entry, lake and canal, across the upper end of Michigan are novel and interesting features.

The voyage from Buffalo to Duluth covers over eleven hundred miles in the five days' journey. Leaving Buffalo, the steamships Juniata, Tionesta and Octorara, make stops at Erie, Cleveland, Detroit, Mackinac Island, the Soo, Marquette, Houghton and Hancock, and Duluth.

The 1910 season opened on May 31, when the Steamer Tionesta made her first sailing from Buffalo.

The Anchor Line is the Great Lake Annex of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and the service measures up to the high standard set by the "Standard Railroad of America."

An illustrated folder, giving sailing dates of steamers, rates of fare, and other information is in course of preparation, and may be obtained when ready from any Pennsylvania Railroad Ticket Agent, who is also prepared to book passengers who may desire to take this trip through the Great Lakes and back.

LITTLE THOMAS MITCHELL IN HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Son Of Well Known Contractor And Mill Man Caught In Re-Saw—Suffered Painful Injuries And Arm Had To Be Amputated.

A most distressing accident, in which Thomas Mitchell, Jr., 13 years old, was the unfortunate victim, occurred at the mill of the Salisbury Wood Working Company Thursday morning. On the first floor of the mill is a powerful re-saw which is never used except by experienced employees. The man who had been operating this machine left it for a few minutes to attend to some duties on the second floor. It was during his absence that the little fellow attempted to operate the machine. In some unknown manner his left arm became caught between the large rollers which feed the saw and he was literally dragged into the machine. The belt is kept loose on the driving pulley of the re-saw and this is, perhaps, all that saved the boy's life. When he had been drawn into the machine up to his shoulder the belt slipped and the rollers stopped feeding the saw.

His cries brought the employees of the mill to the spot instantly and the little fellow was found in a horribly mangled condition. His left arm was in a badly lacerated condition and it was necessary to amputate the arm just below the elbow. His left shoulder was badly crushed, his right shoulder was dislocated and several ribs were broken. The ambulance was summoned and he was immediately removed to the Peninsula General Hospital where his injuries were cared for. He was reported as resting easily when The Courier went to press.

The boy is a most popular little fellow both among his fellow playmates and his many older friends. He was, perhaps, the most industrious boy in the city. It will be remembered that he captured a handsome prize offered by the Curtis Publishing Company last Spring for selling the largest number of copies of the Saturday Evening Post. He is the son of Mr. Thomas Mitchell, the well known contractor and builder and owner of the mill in which the boy met with the accident.

A Gigantic Celebration.

All of the details having been completed, the gigantic Fourth of July celebration to be held in this city and on the grounds of the Wicomico Fair Association, now promises to eclipse anything of its kind ever attempted in Salisbury before. The complete program has been previously published in the columns of this paper. The entries for the four races, the 2-40 trot, 2-40 pace, 2-18 pace and the Ira Smith Farmers' Race show that these races will be of unusual interest and the contests will be exciting from start to finish.

A large stage, 20 by 30 feet, has been erected directly in front of the grand stand upon which some of the best vaudeville performers will entertain the crowds. There will be a balloon ascension in the afternoon and one at night with parachute descensions. While the massive balloon is in flight coupons of actual cash value will be thrown to the ground. The fireworks at night will be worth more than the price of admission and the many other attractions, combined, offer an entertainment unprecedented in the history of Salisbury. The charge of admission during the day will be twenty five cents and a charge of ten cents will be made at night.

The entire celebration is in charge of the Wicomico Fair Association.

Sanatorium Opened.

The Pine Bluff Sanatorium, an institution for scientific treatment of tuberculosis, opened its doors June 20th to patients afflicted with this disease. The institution is under the supervision of Dr. G. W. Todd, assisted by Mr. Edward Baker, a former patient of The Dermady Cottage Sanatorium, Morton, Pennsylvania. The nursing department is headed by Miss Sarah Harper, a former nurse of Chestnut Hill Sanatorium, Philadelphia.

Last Sunday was a red letter day in the history of Grace Methodist Episcopal Chapel, in East Salisbury. The occasion was the formal dedication of the beautiful new place of worship on Ann street, which has been in the process of erection for several months. The services in the morning were in charge of Dr. S. W. Reigart, D. D., who preached an appropriate sermon. In the afternoon the handsome edifice was dedicated with the usual ceremonies and a sermon by Rev. T. E. Martindale, D. D., pastor of Asbury M. E. Church, this city. Rev. Geo. L. Hardesty, of Kent Island, occupied the pulpit in the evening.

The new church is a frame structure, of exceptionally pretty design, and is furnished with solid oak pews. The large windows are of the newest stained variety and add considerably to the beauty of the building. The entire floor is covered with the finest quality of linoleum of a negative shade. The large organ is also of very pretty design and harmonizes well with the interior finish.

PEOPLE OF SHARPTOWN WILL BANQUET SENATOR.

Decided At Public Meeting To Tender Reception To Senator Price In Appreciation Of Effort To Secure Nanticoke Bridge.

In appreciation of his untiring efforts which resulted in securing a special appropriation for the building of a bridge across the Nanticoke river, at Sharptown, the people of that town, at a public meeting on Saturday night, decided to give a banquet to Senator Jesse D. Price at an early date. The people were loud in their expressions for such an occasion. The banquet will be held on the camp grounds at Sharptown. The committee in charge of the event is as follows:

Walter C. Mann, chairman, Purnell T. White, secretary and treasurer. The other members added were, Jos. P. Cooper, Benj. P. Gravener, J. E. Taylor, Dr. W. N. Gassaway, J. Wilbur Phillips, S. P. Twiford, E. A. Broad, Ned B. Owens, Geo. E. Owens and E. R. Howard. In considering the affair it was agreed to make the occasion a great day in Sharptown and in order to have ample accommodations for all it was suggested that the camp ground be secured as a suitable place with ample room and a large auditorium, dining rooms and

Institution for the treatment of tuberculosis which was thrown open this week.

Grace M. E. Church had its origin a number of years ago and for a considerable length of time the congregation has held regular meetings in a vacant house on a lot adjoining the present site which was gratuitously offered by Hon. William H. Jackson. Under the guidance of Rev. J. W. Hardesty, the pastor, the little congregation has grown and prospered and some time ago Mr. Jackson, who has ever taken a great interest in the movement, offered to furnish the lot and erect a church provided the congregation would raise $1000.00 towards the amount needed. The proposition was accepted and while it meant a great sacrifice to many of the congregation, the money was at last turned over to Mr. Jackson. The contract for the building was at once awarded and the result is the present structure which cost about $5000.00.

cooking conveniences to prepare a reception on a large scale which the committee proposes to make. The Governor of the State, Hon. Austin L. Crothers, and several of the state officials, the people of Salisbury and other parts of the county will be invited. Senator Price has ingratiated himself in the hearts of the people in such a manner as to remove all political lines of demarcation and all will join heartily in honoring the Senator, regardless of political sentiments or affiliations.

COUNTY TAX RATE IS FIXED BY COMMISSIONERS.

Increased Nine Cents In Order To Continue Improving Roads And Bridges. A History Of The Improvements Made.

Friday last was a busy day at the Court House. It was the day set apart by the County Commissioners to strike the Levy and provide for the expenses of the County for the fiscal year commencing June 1st, 1910 and ending June 1st, 1911.

After going over the matter thoroughly it was found that anticipating a new assessment this year, the Commissioners had been somewhat liberal in their expenditures for roads and bridges and other improvements in the County, including the public schools, and while the rate could have been fixed the same as last year, one dollar on the hundred for County purposes, it was found that the revenue which this rate would produce would not be sufficient to meet the demands of the public for improved roads and schools for the coming year. It was a question with the Commissioners as to whether they should keep the rate at the old notch and turn down some of the contemplated improvements, or raise the rate slightly and carry forward the work under contemplation. It was finally decided that the policy of improvements in this County which has been in progress for five or six years, should not be halted at this time, but should be carried forward. It was then decided to make the tax rate for the County $1.09 on the hundred dollars. The State Tax is 15 cents.

The demands upon the Commissioners for roads and bridges have also been heavy, and while they have spent a large sum on these items during the year, they have not been able to do every thing that the public demanded, but are progressing all the time along this line. During the year many substantial culverts have been built and old bridges disposed of with. The repairs to shell roads have been a very expensive item and several miles of new shell roads have been constructed. It is the intention to provide for permanent improvements in the way of culverts and drains rather than the flimsy makeshifts of former years.

It is the intention of the Commissioners to use our proportion of the State money under the Shoemaker Act every year, which will entail a cost of about $10,000.00 on the county for building new roads under the Act, outside of other road expenses.

Roads And Bridge Work.

The following is a detailed statement of the road and bridge work done by the Roads Engineer, from June 1, 1909 to June 1, 1910, and shows where a large part of the money was spent:

Shoemaker Roads—Middle Neck road Section 3, 1.04 miles, $6,947.60; Section 1, .50 miles and bridge, $3,361.49; Meadow Bridge Road, $6,420.12; a total of $16,729.21. County's half of above, $8,364.60.

County-Built Shell Roads—Pittsville Powelville road, 0.68 miles; Pittsville Delaware Road, 0.68 miles; Pittsville Street to School House, 0.10 miles; Shad Point Road, 1 mile; Nanticoke Bivalve Road, 2.17 miles; Wetpquin-Royal Oak Road, 0.50 miles; Bivalve-Windsor Cove Road, 0.25 miles. A total of new shell roads built, including State aid Roads, of 8 miles.

Repairs to Old Shell Roads—Fruitland-Tony Tank-Salisbury Road, 4 miles; Snow Hill and Colburn's Mill Roads, 4 miles; Salisbury-Mt. Hermon Road, 1 mile; Salisbury-Quantico road 0.50 miles; Salisbury-Delmar ("Jersey") Road, 1.33 miles; Salisbury-Hebron ("Spring Hill") Road, 4 miles; White Haven-Green Hill Road, 1 mile; Middle Neck Road, 0.17 miles; Salisbury-Parsonsburg Road, 2 miles; Total old shell roads repaired 18 miles.

Total Stone Roads in County 6 miles; total shell roads in County, 40 miles; total Sand-Clay Roads in the county, 10 miles; Total improved dirt Roads in County, 100 miles.

Dirt Roads—Delmar-Blackwater Road, 5 miles; Middle Neck-Eton Church, 1 mile; Salisbury-Parsonsburg road, 1.5 miles; Darby Sliding-Cooper's Mill, 1 mile; "Old Rail Road" 2.5 miles; Rewastico Mill-Alms House Road, 0.5 miles; Quantico-Hebron Road, 2.5 miles; Quantico-Cherry Walk Road, 2 miles; Quantico-Catch-Penny Road, 1.5 miles; Catch-Penny-Green Hill Road, 1.5 miles; Wetpquin Ferry-Baptist Church Road, 2 miles; Trinity Church

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Study For To-morrow. "Parable Of The Tares." Amly Discussed by A Local Writer.

Golden Text:—Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father.

Immediately following the rendering of the parable of the sower, the Master gave the parable of the tares. We should note that He spoke the parable to the people, but the full meaning of it He gave to the disciples after their return to the house, perhaps in caper-naum. The parable was a severe arraignment of the teachers of that day, and while no doubt clear to them the disciples asked for a full explanation of it.

The kingdom of heaven, or, as now existing, the kingdom of heaven brought to earth, was instituted by the Son of Man, that the laws of heaven might be known and obeyed by man, and thus earth become like heaven. The kingdom of heaven thus established by its king is growing and expanding so as to cover the entire earth. The sower is the Son of man. He began sowing in Eden, and continues sowing the seed of truth, the word of God, the laws of the kingdom, making the world better. The field is the world; not the church or any particular people, but the whole world. It is God's by right of creation, and now His kingdom of heaven is brought to it that it may become like heaven, His dwelling place.

Why did God put man into the world if not to make it a part of His kingdom? All that He has done for man has been in this direction. The Bible fully declared the working out of this ideal, and an explanation of what it shall be when the goal is attained.

The good seed or result of good seed sown are the children of the kingdom, they are the wheat in the great field, the world. They are sown broadcast everywhere in the world. They multiply and bring forth fruit in the new kingdom.

But an enemy sowed tares. Tare means "darnel," a weed common in Southern Europe and all Mediterranean States. It closely resembles wheat in appearance while young, but is very different in the head or ear (fruit). The grain is not only useless for food but poisonous, hence dangerous.

The tares of this kingdom of heaven upon earth are the wicked. The sower or enemy is Satan, the spirit of evil, man's greatest enemy, opposing the spirit of truth. It was introduced among mankind from the very first. The clanking, degrading force, the spirit of evil is not a degenerating virtue, one of the virtues of man, but a distinct entity, entirely distinct from man's original nature. It is ingrafted into man's existence. It is as distinct from man's original nature as wheat from tares, roses from thistle. In the great harvest of the world it mingles with the wheat. Purity is assailed by wiliness, honesty by falsity, pity by worldliness. The vital question is, Which is conquering?

The soil suitable for wheat is suitable for tares. The more we train the mind to know and receive the truth, the more carnal is Satan to implant evil; and the growth is so alike the outward appearance is so similar that we cannot know the evil is present until it's fruit shows. Neither are we warranted in uprooting the tares when we know they are present. They are to remain until the harvest, until He that planted comes to garner. Judgment is His. He will repay. Love to our neighbor is our duty. We are to endeavor to lead every one with whom we come in contact into the way of truth. We are the seed, and the soil wherein God plants us is sown with the enemies tares we are to possess the soil and grow a full harvest.

The influence of the good may change those under the influence of the spirit of evil into good citizens for the kingdom of heaven. The world is coming more and more under the laws of the new kingdom. All of the advance of the human family throughout the ages has been due to laws founded upon the laws of the new kingdom. The ill we suffer is directly traceable to the injection of law or usages opposing the laws of truth.

When the harvest has been gathered, what shall be the result? Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. Is that true? Can we realize that all evil banished, the earth shall be a glorious place a kingdom of heaven, described by God through His holy writers? Have not the prophecies so far come true? Does not God's dealings with man bear out His will as manifested, and shall we not accept the prophecy of His future dealings with man? We surely cannot fail to see and realize that the great bar between us and full peace and rest in truth is the evil ever present which we fail to drive out. We are ever striving, ever contending until when in the fulness of time the Master of the harvest gathers His own unto Himself.

What Everybody Ought To Know

That Foley Kidney Pills contain just the ingredients necessary to tone, strengthen and regulate the action of the kidneys and bladder. Sold by John M. Toulson.

Going Round the World.

In sailing around the world eastward the days are each a little less than twenty-four hours, according to the speed of the ship, as the sun is met a little earlier every morning. These little differences added together will amount to twenty-four hours. This gives the sailors an extra day—not in imagination, but as an actual fact. They will have done an extra day's work, eaten an extra day's ration of food and imbibed an extra day's allowance of grog.

On the other hand, in sailing westward the sun is overtaken a little each day, and so each day is rather longer than twenty-four hours, and clocks and watches are found to be too fast. This also will amount in sailing around the world to the point of departure to one whole day by which the reckoning has fallen in arrears. The eastern bound ship, then, has gained a day, and the western bound ship has lost one. This strange fact, clearly worked out, leads to the apparent paradox that the first named ship has a gain of two whole days over the latter. If we suppose them to have departed from port and returned together.—Philadelphia Record.

Modern Gold Mining.

Up until about 150 only placer or surface gold was mined—that is, free gold, deposited in the beds of streams, in sands or in the crevices of rocks. Placer mining, mainly in new and remote regions, still furnishes a material though not a large percentage of the world's output. Formerly the alluvial gold was separated from the sands and gravels containing it by washing them in pans, cradles, rockers and sluices. In 1835 the hydraulic method was first employed in California. By this means a "giant" stream of water turned against the side of a mountain washes everything before it. The gold settles to the bottom of the tunnel or sluice through which the gravel, sand and water flow. In 1889 dredges or excavators were first used in Australia. Today steam and electric dredges produce a considerable portion of the world's output.—Byron W. Holt in Everybody's.

The Hat Straw Crop.

The greater part of the straw employed for making summer hats comes from Italy. To obtain a suitable straw for this purpose the wheat is sown as thickly as possible in order that the growth of the plant may be impoverished as well as to produce a thin stalk. The Italian wheat blooms at the beginning of June and is pulled up by hand by the roots when the grain is half developed. Should it be allowed to remain in the ground a longer time the straw would become too brittle for the purpose for which it is grown. Uprooted straws to the number of about five dozen, the size of the compass of the two hands, are firmly tied together in little sheaves and stowed away in barns. After that the straw is again spread out to catch the heavy summer dews and to bleach in the sun. When the product has been sufficiently bleached it is put into small bundles and classified. The last step is to cut it close above the first joint from the top, when it is again tied up in small bundles containing about sixty stalks each and is then ready for the market.—Harper's Weekly.

A Storekeeper Says:

"A lady came into my store lately and said: 'I have been using a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove all winter in my apartment. I want one now for my summer home. I think these oil stoves are wonderful. If only women knew what a benefit they are, they would all have one. I spoke about my stove to a lot of my friends, and they were astonished. They thought that there was small and smoke from oil stoves, and that it heated rooms just like any other stove. I told them of my experience, and one after another they got one, and now, not one of them would give him up for five times its cost.'"

The lady who said this had thought an oil stove was all right for quickly heating milk for a baby, or boiling a bottle of water, or to make coffee quickly in the morning, but she never dreamed of using it for domestic or heavy cooking. Now—she knows. Do you really appreciate what a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove means to you? No more coal to carry, no more chopping the cheap logs to find out that you can't eat them. No more smoke and immediately the freedom of indoor life. No more standing in the bottom of pots, bottles or pans. The stove is so perfect. It is so simple, so easy to use, so safe, so economical in the kitchen where one of these stoves is used.

New Perfection Oil Cook-stove

It has a Cabinet Top with a shelf for keeping plates and food hot. The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be used with or without Cabinet.

Young American Violinist Wins
It is announced that Albert Spalding, the young American violinist, will make a grand concert tour of the United States in 1911, which will afford music lovers in his native land an opportunity to hear the playing of this popular virtuoso for the first time since he really grew up. He is now about twenty-two years of age. He is in Europe with his father and will make a European concert tour the coming autumn.

Young Spalding is a native of Chicago, son of J. W. Spalding and nephew of A. G. Spalding, the noted sporting goods man who sometimes is called "the father of baseball." As Reginald de Koven once remarked, the far cry from sporting goods to violin virtuosity in a single family is somewhat striking, though it serves to show the scope and versatility of our national genius.

"I saw a clean cut, almost typical American youth good to look upon, without the smallest pose or affectation in hair or manner, evidently artistic, as evidently whole and sincere. Then he played, and I heard what I must consider violin playing of a high order, distinguished by great finish, refinement and elegance of style rather than by force or great breadth, yet displaying rare artistic intelligence and sympathy in conception. Spalding's tone is singularly clear and even, sweet and penetrating, with the sheen and luster of a rich satin rather than the robust sonority of a Wilhelmj or Tschaik."

As a boy wonder at the age of ten Albert Spalding astonished the musical critics of London. He made his first appearance before the Duke and Duchess of Connaught. At fourteen his genius so impressed Professor Chitt that the latter suggested that he undergo the severe test of an examination for a professorship at the Bologna conservatory. The principal of the conservatory, three violin professors and two cello artists conducted the examination. The boy made forty-eight marks out of a possible fifty. Thirty points were sufficient to pass the test. Upon looking up the records it was found that he was the youngest violinist to pass such an exacting examination. The books showed that Mozart, 183 years earlier, at the same age, had passed a similar test for the piano.

At seventeen Spalding was giving concerts in the European capitals and winning unstinted praise everywhere he appeared. The late King Edward and the present King George heard him and expressed their appreciation in high terms. Since then the young American's triumphs in Russia, Germany, France and England before distinguished personages and the most noted artists and critics have been numerous. "Albert Spalding has proved to be one of the foremost in the entire artistic sphere," wrote the critic of the St. Petersburg Herald last January. "He is a perfectly well balanced artist." This is but a sample of the European critical acclaim. The fact that the artist is an American is highly gratifying to those who hold that foreign birth and uncultured hair are necessary to musical genius.

PARROTS AS POLICEMEN.

Poultry Farmer's Scheme to Drive Off Hawks and Mountain Rats. John ("Speedy") Smith, a poultry farmer on Placer creek, in the heart of the Copur d'Alene mining district, in northern Idaho, has stationed several talking parrots as policemen on his ranch to drive off hawks and mountain rats, and raids on his pens are now things of the past. The parrots take kindly to the work, and by their screeching they have forced the birds of prey and rodents to give the ranch a wide berth. The rats were the worst pests, and their raids cost Smith hundreds of dollars, getting into the chicken pens and killing the pullets and hens by biting their throats and eating their hearts. Since placing the parrots in the chicken yards and pens not a hawk or a rat has been seen, and Smith believes he has solved a problem that has given poultry farmers in the mountain districts much concern during the last five years. Farmers in other parts of the district say they will try the plan.

Innovation at a Wedding.

A novelty has been introduced in English weddings. The bride is attended by a best girl instead of a bevy of bridesmaids. The best girl does not follow the bride up the aisle, as bridesmaids do, but stands at the head of the center aisle opposite the position of the best man. There both await the arrival of bride and bridegroom. With the best man the best girl follows the pair down the aisle after the ceremony. Brides will like the innovation because it is economical. They will have to buy a present for the best girl only instead of for a bevy of bridesmaids.

Is This An Attempted Boycott?

The publishers of THE COURIER are in receipt of a letter from Mr. J. T. Taylor, Jr., of Princess Anne, relative to the races which have been scheduled by the Wicomico Fair Association and which have been advertised as the important features of the gigantic Fourth of July celebration to be held in this city. We understand, also, that the letter was written in duplicate and that copies were addressed to each of the Wicomico County newspapers.

The letter follows:

THE COURIER,
Salisbury, Md.
Gentlemen:

I was very much surprised to see your trots for the Fourth of July and see that you have gone back 20 years. I have not seen such a slow race as a 2.40 trot. Do you think we would go to see such a race when we can get one absolutely free in much faster time? I am sure we can keep the crowd from Salisbury. We have been trying to work hand in hand with you but you don't seem to appreciate it, not that we care, because when our horses go to a race we generally take the crowd. I am sorry that we could not make the race 2.30 instead of 2.40 and if we get beat we take our medicine easy.

I am sure you have made a mistake to keep some of us out, and that you will not publish this in your paper; but we will have it published in ours, and also distribute some circulars notifying our people how we have been treated.

Hoping that at some future day we will have somebody that knows how to manage the track, I am,

Yours truly,

(Signed) J. T. Taylor, Jr.

P. S. 2.40 trot back 20 years.

Wake'em up, you can do it!

Knowing, as we do, that Mr. Taylor is the owner of a horse which trots in the 2.30 class, we can readily understand his motive. And we believe that this fact is in itself conclusive evidence that the letter was written for reasons which were purely personal. It is not because Mr. Taylor's rather indignant letter has any special news of editorial value that we publish it in these columns. It is to fully acquaint the people of Somerset county with the manner in which the racing card was gotten up that we give the matter publicity.

In the first place, several weeks ago, when it was first proposed to have racing here on the Fourth of July, the local members of the Association who were to be in charge of the events, went into the matter of the different classes thoroughly before deciding on a 2.40 class trot and a 2.40 class pace. The Association had but one idea in view and that was to make the classes satisfactory to all people concerned and in order to carry out this view the card, showing clearly the events which had been decided upon, was submitted to the people of Somerset county, through Mr. D. C. Armstrong, and the schedule was approved by him. It was not until after this approval that the cards were printed and sent out to the horse owners.

After the cards were distributed, a large number of entries had been secured. Mr. Armstrong requested the Association to provide for a 2.30 trot. We have every reason to believe that this request was made for the sole purpose of making a place for the horse which is owned by Mr. Taylor. This request came in too late to be considered. The card had been approved by the people of Somerset as being entirely satisfactory and if a 2.30 class trot was desired, the request should have been made at the time the schedule was submitted. Had the Association desired to ignore the wishes of the people of Somerset county the card never would have been submitted to Mr. Armstrong in the first instance and had a request for a 2.30 class trot been expressed at that time an event in that class certainly would have been provided for on the card.

Mr. Taylor states that he is sure he can keep the crowd away from Salisbury, but after the people of Somerset know the true reason why his letter was written, we believe his attempted boycott will have the same effect that would ensue had his undignified epistle been consigned to the waste basket immediately after it was written. Such letters can only have one effect and that is to rebound, like a boomerang, and create its greatest havoc at the source from which it originated. We firmly believe that Mr. Taylor's letter, when given publicity, will reflect more upon the writer than any one else and that the threatened boycott will have a tendency to swell, rather than diminish, the crowd from Somerset county which will attend the races in this city on the Fourth of July.

It is generally known, among horsemen, that races in the 2.40 class are very often the fastest races of an entire meeting. It is the races in this class that bring out the faster horses. Nearly all of the entries in a race in this class are young on the track. Their speed is unknown and the younger horses are given a chance for the first time to make a showing.

In addition to this the events which have been arranged by the Wicomico Fair Association to celebrate the Fourth are not confined to horse racing. Abundant entertainment has been secured and there is no doubt that the biggest and best and cheapest amusements ever offered to the public will attract thousands and thousands of people to this city on that day. The Association has spared no expense and the management is to be congratulated upon the seemingly stupendous undertaking.

Antona

The Story of a Strike and the Way It Was Settled.

By AGNES C. BROGAN.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

The strike at the steel plant had lasted long. Vaughn, the assistant manager, went in his automobile to investigate the temper of the strikers. He was received by a boisterous crowd. A giant Italian raised a stone and held it poised high above his head.

"Throw it, Andrea!" screamed the voices, and then down the steps of a tenement building came a flying figure—a girl whose dusky hair fell about her face as she ran.

"Andrea," she called breathlessly, "remember Nikola!"

Unquestionably the men made way for her as she rushed through the crowd and leaped into the automobile, then stood directly before the man whose life was threatened, protecting him with one small outstretched hand.

"Wait!" she cried. "Wait!" And then it seemed to Vaughn that a miracle happened, for the desperate man instantly obeyed her imperious call and by a common impulse moved farther back into the roadway, leaving a clear path before.

"Andrea," the girl repeated sobbingly, "oh, Andrea!" And in silence the giant replaced his stone and followed the others.

As she stood panting, one hand pressed closely against her heart, the picture was indelibly stamped upon Vaughn's memory—the small white face with its great dark eyes.

Down the rickety stairway, clattering upon his crutches, hobbled a crippled Italian boy. "Antona!" he wailed.

The girl's face was transformed by a loving smile. "It's all right, Nikola," she called reassuringly. "I will be with you soon."

"And now," she asked of the waiting men, "will you let us go? This person is here for your good. Can you not trust Antona?"

As though in answer the crowd quickly dispersed, and she turned to Vaughn. "I am going to ride with you until you have passed through the dangerous section," she said. "Start at once, for their moods change quickly."

The factories and houses had been left behind when the girl again spoke. "You will be quite safe now," she told him. "Let me get out, please. I must go back."

Vaughn stopped the machine at her bidding and bent over to look into her eyes. "I am inexpressibly grateful," he said, "for the great service you have done me, while I marvel at the power you hold over those desperate men."

"I love them and do things for them all," she answered simply, "and down here in this part of the world we repay our kindnesses just as truly as we revenge our wrongs."

"You say 'we,'" the man interposed quickly, "but you are very different from the others."

"That is only because I have had the schooling and training which they have missed," she answered. "In thought and feeling I am still a woman of the people and sooner or later, as you have learned, demand payment for my kind deeds. What reward shall I claim from you, Mr. Vaughn?"

"I am eager to show my gratitude," he replied.

She stood up before him, and her glowing color deepened. "If you are sincere in that," she said quietly, "then end the strike at once."

The man looked up in dismay at this unexpected request. "You ask an impossibility," he said curtly. "I am but the junior member of the company, and even if I were willing to yield to the unreasonable demand of the men whose cause you champion there are others in power higher than myself."

The girl spoke in a low, passionate tone. "You and I both know," she said, "that they will do exactly as you advise. All has been left to your judgment. Your agents, or whatever they may be called, have not been giving you correct information regarding the origin of this strike. This time the workman's cause is just, and I will tell a few truths which it will be well for you to know."

Vaughn sat fascinated, watching her flashing eyes and impulsive gestures as she eloquently portrayed the misery and poverty in the lives of the men who had threatened him so short a time ago. Tears filled the girl's eyes. "And there is Nikola," she continued. "It was his father who would have crushed you with that great stone today. His temper when aroused is terrible. In a fit of rage he threw the baby Nikola downstairs, and that is why he must walk on crutches always. Since then Andrea's life has been one long effort to make amends to the boy, and because I try to make Nikola happier there is nothing I may ask of Andrea that he will not do. When Nikola is in want then the father turns savage and cruel. Many nights since the strike began has the boy slept and wakened hungry, for one must plan cleverly indeed to thrust charity upon these two stubborn people. Oh, promise me," she said tremulously, "that this strike may end."

Her voice thrilled him strangely. "You do not understand," Vaughn said.

surely, "all that is involved in a struggle to maintain the increased wages is of no account."

"Then," she answered, "if the men go back to work, they are easily agreeing to all your conditions. Will you later pay them what they have asked of you?"

Vaughn smiled. "We would willingly comply with that peculiar arrangement, Miss Antona," he replied, "but these people of yours have refused any compromise."

The girl stepped down into the roadway and shook her head in mock despair. "The men would be much more easily induced than yourself, Mr. Vaughn," she said, and then he gave the desired promise and regretfully watched the little figure until a bend in the road hid her from his view.

The next day, without explanation or mention of any agreement, came the surprising news that the workmen had surrendered, and when Vaughn returned to his private office after a lengthy consultation with the senior members of the company he found a very small boy with crutches beneath his arms standing near the doorway, his mournful eyes shining out weirdly from the thin, wan face. "Iva born for Meester Vaughn," he said, with a sort of Italian accent, "from Mees Antona."

The neatly folded paper contained but three words, "Remember your promise." And Vaughn replied briefly, "I have remembered."

Through the busy days which followed the girl's face, with its wonderful dark beauty, haunted him continually, and he was possessed of an overwhelming desire to hear her voice, perhaps now in commendation, and at length he determined to visit upon the following day the crowded street near the factory. It was really necessary, he told himself, that he should learn what effect the settlement of the strike had upon the lives of the people, and Nikola could tell him where to find her.

This particular evening he had agreed to accompany Freddie White to the opera. It was very high class opera, and Vaughn was exceedingly bored until his roving eyes, glancing into an opposite box, rested unbelievably upon the pliant, glowing face of Antona. Clad in a white silken gown, with sparkling jewels at her throat, she leaned forward, listening with rapt expression to the music. Vaughn caught his friend's hand in a crushing grasp. "Who is that?" he demanded.

Freddie winced; then his gaze followed Vaughn's. "By Jove!" he said pitifully. "We all succumb sooner or later to Miss Norton's undisputed charm, but to be bowled over at the first glance, old man, is unusual."

"Who is she?" Vaughn insisted, and Freddie drew a long breath.

"Well, to be exact," he answered, "her mother is the acknowledged society leader, her father an inexhaustible bank while Miss Antona herself dispenses us and our superficial pleasures. We merely have rare glimpses of her. She is interested in settlement work—noble purposes and all that sort of thing. The poor and miserable of a certain section regard her as an angel upon earth, and good reason they have to do so. Pretty names they have for her. Little Mother is one, and she seems to understand the queer beggars and to like them too. Hang it all, Vaughn, I'd be an Italian laborer myself to gain that girl's approval!"

But his friend did not smile. "Will you present me after the performance?" he asked eagerly, and Freddie willingly complied.

"Prepare to be snubbed, agreeable as you may consider yourself," he said by way of friendly warning. But Miss Norton was very gracious to Vaughn, and the astonished Freddie, after standing unnoticed for some time in the rear of the box, presently withdrew. Vaughn looked admiringly down into the girl's dark eyes.

"I have been trying to decide," he said, "whether I most admire a white satin gown or one blue woolen dress which has a scarlet tie."

"It all depends," she replied, "whether you prefer the beautiful things of life to the useful ones."

"A combination of the two," he said seriously, "is good indeed to see."

She smiled and turned to seek the members of her party, who, seeing her evidently engaged, had drifted away.

Vaughn laid the dainty opera cloak across her shoulders.

"The wheels of a great factory are moving again," he said slowly. "Hundreds of men leave its doors each night to go home to happier families. There is no more discontent, and it is all because of you."

"The girl looked out and far beyond the moving floor. 'I am so glad,' she said joyfully, 'so glad, though until you spoke I had not thought of all that it means to so many, for I seemed only to see Andrea coming home with his great arms filled with packages. Little Nikola would meet him at the head of the stairs; then a never-to-be forgotten supper would be served upon the wooden table near the window, and," she added softly, "it is all because of you."

"Antona," the man whispered tenderly, "Antona!"

She laughed a little unsteadily. "Yes," she said, "you may call me by Nikola's translation of my name. It is a privilege which only you may share with him."

"You were kind enough to act as my escort upon one memorable occasion," Vaughn reminded her. "May I now return the favor?"

Miss Norton looked in the direction of her waiting friends and nodded in them with a conciliating smile, then placed her hand upon his arm. "You may if you please," she said.

In addition to the above new construction, all dirt roads and a number of old shell roads previously built been dragged with split log and plank drags and in some cases regarded with the small and large graders. Small wooden bridges have been replaced with terra cotta pipes wherever practicable and on State Aided Roads with cast iron pipes with concrete headwalls. Roads have been widened and straightened wherever the property owners have been agreeable to same and in some cases condemnation proceedings have been instituted for the necessary changes in alignment and drainage facilities. The larger wooden bridges have been rebuilt or repaired as necessity required, generally of wood, owing to the great cost of concrete construction in the remote parts of the county. Among the larger bridges rebuilt during the year are the following:

Middle Neck Bridge, formerly of wood, rebuilt of concrete and steel; Johnson's Creek Bridge, formerly of wood, rebuilt of wood; Quantico Creek Bridge, formerly of wood, rebuilt of wood; Gum Mill Bridge, formerly of wood, rebuilt of wood; Adkins' Creek Bridge formerly of wood, rebuilt of wood; Burbage's Pocomoke River Bridge, formerly of Wood, rebuilt of wood.

The County is at present engaged in the construction of 5.5 miles of the Salisbury-Mardela Road, for which they have a contract with the State Roads Commission, and which is operated separately from other County Road accounts. About 3.5 miles have been completed. At the completion of this contract the County will build the section of road from the end of their contract to River-ton, under the supervision of the State Roads Commission, the State to pay the entire cost of construction and for the supervision of the work by the County Roads Engineer and use of the County's rollers and equipment. The section from River-ton to Sharptown has been let to the Caroline Construction Co.

The Large Items.

In making up the levy for the fiscal year from June 1st, 1910 to June 1st, 1911, the Commissioners ascertained that the total expenses of the County would be $101,617.98, made up of the following items:

Public Schools $22,000.00
Public Highways 23,675.00
Printing and Advertising 1,093.50
High School Bonds and Interest 2,400.00
Treasurer's Office 2,800.00
County Commissioners 1,600.00
Constables 128.35
Vaccination 344.50
City Councils 1,750.00
Deficiencies, Roads, Etc. 16,351.30
Support of Paupers 5,550.00
Attorneys 1,830.00
Care of Insane 4,025.00
Maintenance of Ferries 1,035.00
Elections 3,700.00
Court House and Jail 1,200.00
Court Expenses 4,600.00
Sheriff's Office 1,200.00
Jail Expenses 1,158.00
Orphan's Court 464.00
Health Officer 339.55

A very comprehensive statement made to the Commissioners on Friday by the County Treasurer shows the receipts and disbursements for the fiscal year 1909-1910 to have been $115,207.00, the largest items being for the building and improving of public roads and the erection of new school houses. The disbursements for roads were $53,073.85, and for new school houses $18,000.00. In the expenditures for Public Schools, there were two large buildings erected in Salisbury, one large building at Pittsville, and several smaller district schools. The Commissioners have provided for the erection of a central school building at Mardela, work on which is now under way, costing about $3,600.00. Provision has also been made for the erection of five district schools and repairs to several white and colored District schools.

County's Taxable Basis.

The assessable basis of Wicomico County is gradually increasing every year. The increase this year is about $300,000.00. This is new property placed on the books. The basis of the several Districts is as follows:

Barren Creek 411,787.00
Quantico 426,984.00
Tyaskin 299,378.00
Pittsburg 336,482.00
Parsons 1,235,196.00
Dennis 177,408.00
Trappe 340,900.00
Nutter's 226,514.00
Salisbury 1,462,078.00
Sharptown 266,751.00
Delmar 396,817.00
Nanticoke 325,316.00
Camden 766,695.00
Willard 135,130.00

Total Real & Personal $ 6,810,264.00

Stocks of Corporations 2,127,474.00

Bonds of Corporations 1,065,200.00

Total Basis $10,002,938.00

The tax rate of $1.05 on the hundred dollars for County purposes will bring in a revenue of about $97,400. Added to this the rate of thirty cents on the hundred for $1,000,000 bonds which will produce a revenue of $3,000.00, the total revenue of the county will be about $100,000.00 in round numbers.

The Commissioners have worked hard to keep down the increasing expenses of the county. The demands upon them are growing every day, and the taxpayers will have to make up their minds that if the Commissioners grant the improvements the taxpayers must pay for them. There is no other place for the commissioners to get money except from the taxpayers' pockets. The Commissioners are doing their duty and should receive the support of citizens of the county in their effort to keep up these improvements and get the county in first-class shape.
